Ugly Wreck in New York Central Tunnel This Morning.

Escaping Steam Adds to the Torture of the Injured Passengers.

Engine Crashed Into Rear End of a New York, New Haven and Hartford Train---Frightful Disaster in New York City About Nine O'Clock This Morning.

New York, Jan. 8.—In the dark and dismal tunnel of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad at a point just above Fifty-sixth street, a horrifying accident ocurred at 8:20 this morning. Two passenger trains came in rear end collision and the lives of 15 persons were crushed out in a twinkling and some two score persons sustained injury. In the confusion that followed the disaster, no count was kept of the bodies recovered or the injured removed to the hospitals, and therefore the exact number of casualties remained in doubt for some time.

Here follows the list of dead as far as known:

A. G. Walton and H. G. Diamond of New Rochelle, N. Y.: A. E. Mills, 100 Broadway, New York; Oscar W. Meyrowitch, an aged optician of this city; Frank Washburn, 42 years old, New Rochelle; H. B. Foskett, New Rochelle; E. C. Hensdale, New Rochelle; Wm. Leys, New Rochelle; F. H. Fogardo, New Rochelle; Wm. Forbes, New Rochelle; Wm. Howard, New Rochelle; A. M. Perin, New Rochelle; one unknown man; one unknown woman.

A partial list of the injured follows: Sadie Scott, stenographer, New Rochelle, legs crushed; Minnie Wright, stenographer, New Rochelle, internal injuries; George Carter, New Rochelle, scalded, arms and legs fractured; Everett Coffin, New Rochelle; R. H. Molineux, New Rochelle, dislocated shoulder, cuts about the head; Mabel Newman, New Rochelle, internal injuries, bruised and cut; Margaret Langden New Rochelle, badly injured.

In the early morning hours of a week day a procession of passenger trains rolls through the hazy tunnel to the Grand Central depot at Forty-second street. A great majority of these trains are specials run from points in New York and Connecticut for the benefit of persons who reside in these suburban places and are employed in New York. It was two of these accommodation trains that met disaster this morning. Both were heavily loaded with pasengers. The Norwalk local from Norwalk, Conn., was approaching the Grand Central depot slowly. The passengers were engaged in reading morning papers and preparing to leave the train. It was dark and Conductor Blackman of the Norwalk local, sent a brakeman named Barnes back to the rear coach to set a signal light to warn any train following.

Suddenly, without a moment's warning, there came a crash of splintering timbers and the roar of escaping steam. The rear coach of the Norwalk train had been telescoped by engine 108, towing the White Plains local of the New York Harlem road. The big locomotive ploughed half way through the length of the coach, mangling the passengers who did not have time to leave their seats.

The roar was heard in Park avenue through which the tunnel runs and crowds rushed to the opening at the top of the tunnel and looked down upon a horrible spectacle. The White Plains engine was wedged in the rear coach of the Norwalk local. This car was badly wrecked. The smokestack of the locomotive issuing a volume of black smoke and steam, poked through the roof of the car. The second car from the rear was also badly smashed. Above the roar of steam could be heard the groans of the injured and the terrible cries of the panic-stricken passengers in both trains. The police reserves and several companies of firemen were soon on the scene and ambulances were hurrying from all the uptown hospitals.

The tunnel filled with smoke and steam and the work of rescue was done under difficulties, which seemed for a time insurmountable. The firemen lowered ladders into the tunnel through the opening in Park avenue and descended. Every moment it was feared the telescoped engine might explode. Steam was hissing all about the mass of wreckage but the firemen had no thought of danger. Swinging their axes like madmen, the firemen soon penetrated the telescoped car. In th forward end lay a mass of mangled and bleeding humanity. There were probably forty persons there and considering their frightful position it seems marvelous that all had not met death ere the rescuers arrived. Splintered timbers of the car and other debris was scattered over those miserable victims, many of whom were caught and held as if in a vise. The living were struggling desperately to extricate themselves and crying piteously for aid.

All had the impression that they would soon be caught by flames, which threatened to break out at any moment in the fire box of the locomotive. The dead lay all about, entangled in the wreckage.

Beside the 14 dead many of the injured will probably die, being crushed horribly and burned with steam.

The cause of the accident has not yet been determined but Engineer Wysker and Fireman Tyler of the rear train and Signal Operator Flynn are under arrest. The city will make an official investigation of the accident which will probably lead to a change in the construction of the tunnel.

VOWED

He'd Commit Murder if a Wedding Occurred—Invitations Have Been Recalled.

Akron, O., Jan. 8.—Letters were sent out yesterday recalling the invitations to the wedding of Miss Della Semler and Clement Zimmerman, prominent young people, which was to have taken place today. After a conference of the parents the invitations were recalled. The announcement is made by the families that it was because Zimmerman is a Catholic, but it is known that an Akron young man who has paid attention to Miss Semler had vowed he would kill Zimmerman if he married the girl. The whole affair has caused a decided stir and the young man alleged to have made the threat has left the city.

Panama Canal Deal.

Washington, Jan. 8.—M. Lampre, secretary of the Panama Canal company, called on President Roosevelt this morning, but the result of the visit was not made public. Admiral Walker said today that no meeting of the Canal Commission had been held to consider the offer of the Panama people to sell for forty million and he did not know when one would be held.

Nell—"She says her husband is very easily pleased." Belle—"He must be, or he wouldn't have married her."

MOB

With Difficulty is Restrained from Lynching Harry Gossard—Young Girl Assaulted.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 8.—A criminal assault was committed last night on May White, aged 18. Harry Gossard took her to drive to church. He and two companions, James Higgins and John Stropp, dragged her to the woods and all assaulted her. Gossard was captured and only with great difficulty was a mob restrained from lynching him. Officers are now fighting the mob off with revolvers. The girl may die as the result of the assault.

No, Maude, dear; by floating population we do not mean the people who are in the swim.

MR. CURTIS FELL ABOUT 250 FEET

EVERY BONE IN HIS BODY WAS BROKEN.

The Remains An Unrecognizable Mass—Fourteenth Death in New Pittsburg Sky Scraper.

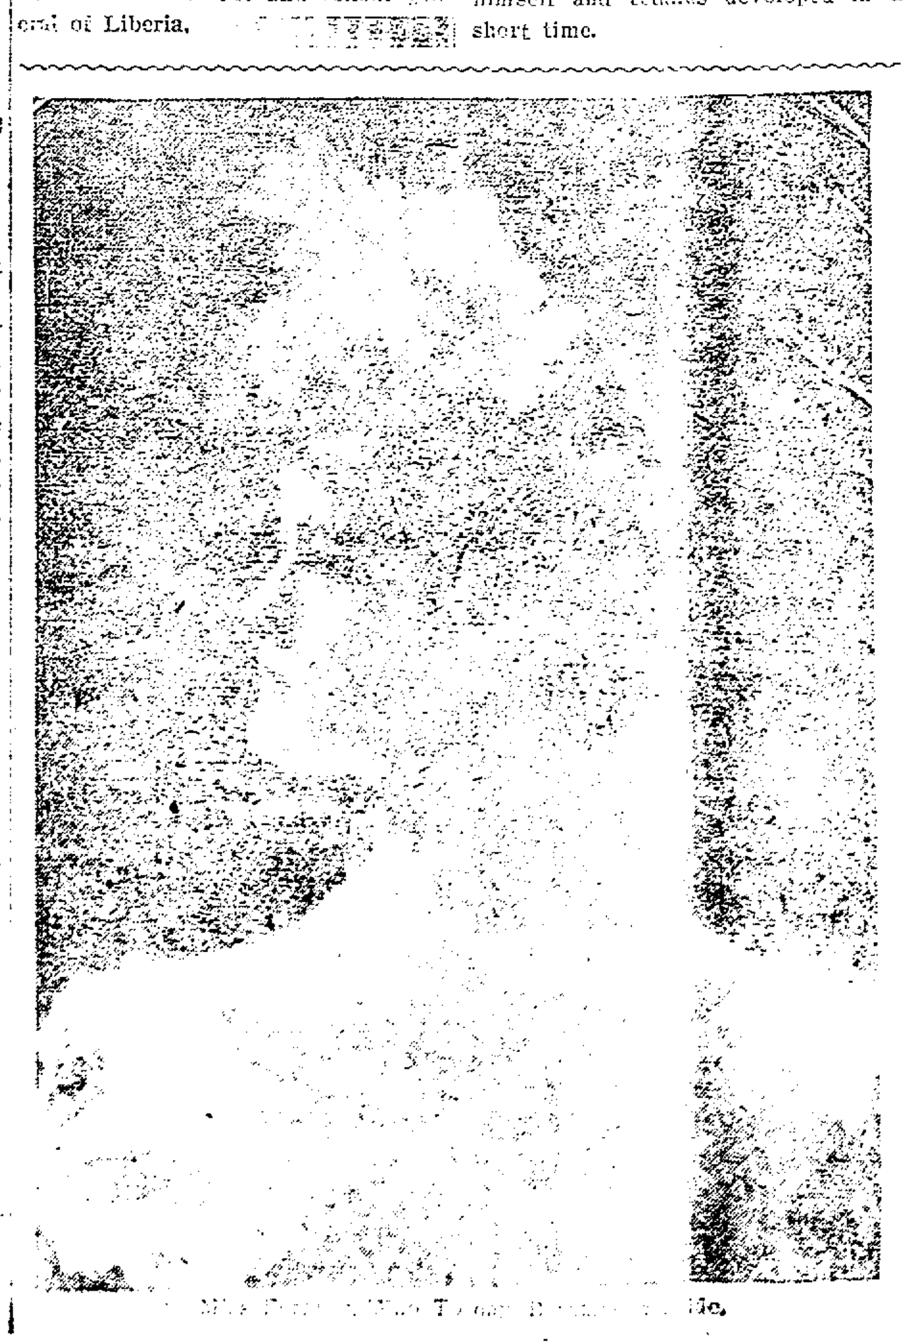

Pittsburg, Jan. 8.—Just before noon today John Curtis, aged 26 years, recently of Boston, Mass., and employed by the Winslow Bros., contractors, of Chicago, fell through an elevator shaft in the new Frick building, on Grant avenue from the sixteenth floor into the basement, a distance of 250 feet. Not a bone in Curtis' body remained unbroken. The body is unrecognizable as that of a human being, and was removed to the morgue. Curtis was a structural iron worker. This is the fourteenth death by accident since the work of erecting the mammoth sky scraper began.

GIFT OF ROCKEFELLER.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 8.—At a mass meeting of Brown University last evening it was announced that John D. Rockefeller was willing to give $75,000 to the University for the erection and equipment of a Y. M. C. A. building at the college. The offer carries with it a proviso that the college raise $25,000 before June.

President's Nominations.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The President today sent to the Senate the nominations of Governor Shaw to be Secretary of the Treasury and Payne to be Post Master General, also that of John R. A. Crossland of Missouri, to be minister resident and consul general of Liberia.

BRIDE

IS HONORED BY THE UNITED STATES SENATE.

THE FORAKER-WAINWRIGHT WEDDING TODAY

WAS A MOST BRILLIANT AFFAIR.

Five Hundred Guests Attended Reception Following the Wedding—The Gowns and Decorations.

Washington, Jan. 8.—A most graceful compliment and one never before paid an American bride was tendered Miss Julia Foraker, youngest daughter of the senior Senator from Ohio today by the Senate of the United States, upon the occasion of her marriage at noon to Mr. Francis King Wainwright of Philadelphia. The Senate postponed its regular hour of meeting from noon to 2 o'clock in honor of the wedding. The ceremony was performed in the handsome Foraker residence by the Rev. Dr. Mackay-Smith, of St. Johns church and was witnessed by only a small company. Five hundred guests attended the reception following the wedding.

The large white and gold ball room of the Foraker mansion was lavishly decorated in Easter lilies and tropical plants and trees, as the bride on the arm of her father, entered and was received by the groom. Clement Wainwright acted as best man.

Miss Foraker wore a bridal costume of ivory white, with point lace yoke and sleeves, and a tulle veil caught with a spray of orange blossoms.

The ceremony was in accordance with the full Episcopal ritual. After the marriage a breakfast for 20 of the intimate friends of the bride and groom was served in the yellow room. The draperies were in gold and the floral [illegible] with yellow and white orchids.

Bouquets of violets for the ladies and boutonnieres for the men were at each plate. At the buffet luncheon served to the guests at the reception in the dining room, the decorations and furnishings were in green and red. Wreaths of holly and long streamers of red silk ribbon were tastefully arranged about the apartments.

Mr. and Mrs. Wainwright after a bridal trip will reside at Bryn Mawr, Pa., where the former is erecting a residence. Senator Foraker presented his daughter with a diamond crescent, in addition to which about 400 gifts have been received by the couple.

LOCKJAW DEVELOPED.

Belvidere, N. J., Jan. 8.—Dr. Frank P. Haggetry, of Vienna, Warren county, a physician is suffering with lockjaw. A few days ago he vaccinated himself and tetanus developed in a short time.

FRUIT CAKE

Eleven Years Old Pronounced to be Fine by Those Fortunate Enough to Get a Slice.

Washington C. H., O., Jan. 8—Eleven years ago an aunt of Miss Orpha Cheney, living in California made a fruit cake and sealed it in a double jar. The agreement was that the jar was to be opened and the cake cut when Miss Cheney got married, or, if she failed to marry within 20 years from the time the cake was made, another young lady, mentioned in the note attached to the cake, was to get it.

A few days ago the announcement of the coming wedding of Miss Cheney to Dr. Avan, presiding elder of the Toledo District of the Northern Ohio M. E. Conference, to take place in this city on January 8, and a few evenings ago the cake was unsealed and cut, and a number of young friends of the bride-to-be sampled it, and all pronounced it very fine. It is a well known fact that the older fruit cake is the better it tastes.

The marriage of Dr. Avan and Miss Cheney will be a quiet society event. The wedding will be solemnized in the church and Dr. A. H. Norcross will perform the ceremony assisted by Dr. J. L. McNair.

A POLICY

FORMULATED BY DEMOCRATS IN SENATE.

PHILIPPINE TARIFF BILL TO BE THE BASIS

OF ATTACK ON REPUBLICANS.

Substitute Bill Being Prepared for Presentation, and Whole Matter Will be Hotly Discussed.

Washington, Jan. 8—The Republican senators have been made aware of the purpose of the Democrats to make a stand on the Philippine tariff bill passed by the House, and precipitate a probable debate that is intended to be the opening gun of party opposition in Congress and the first formal enunciation of party principles upon which the next presidential campaign will be fought.

In the House the Democrats point out that they are overawed by the iron bound rules under which the majority control all debate and all action, and call attention to the fact that the Senate rules allow the utmost freedom of debate, one senaor can prevent the taking of a vote at any time. This, they say, is the place for the party to make its stand and this is what they say they are determined to do.

The bill to provide a temporary revenue for the Philippines by applying the Dingley rates of duty is to be taken as a basis of action for the leaders who will inaugurate a season of political debate when it is reported back from the Philippine commission. This may be done within a few days. The committee will consider the House bill and after incorporating into it some amendments that have been found to be important and necessary since the bill passed the House, will report it back to the Senate.

Then the fur will begin to fly. The Democratic members of the Philippine committee will not only attack the Republican bill as being wrong in principle and unfair and unscientific in construction, but they will have a counter proposition to offer, thus giving them an active opposition policy which they have not had in Congress for several years. The main point of their plan is that there should not be one kind of legislation for Porto Rico and another for the Philippines, as if free trade be impracticable, then a substantial reduction from the proposed Dingley rates.

During the debate on this bill the administration policy in the Philippines from beginning to end will be attacked, and an attempt made by the Democrats to recover the position ground they have lost.

When you break a good resolution don't try to patch it up. It is easier to make a new one.

No, Maude, dear; all the poetry is not typewritten.

BLEW

SAFE AND PUT UP A GOOD FIGHT

BUT THE FOUR BURGLARS LEFT EMPTY HANDED.

A FAIRPORT GROCERY SUFFERS.

Lives Put in Jeopardy by the Robbers. One Man Wounded—Burglars Made Escape.

Fairport, O., Jan. 8.—Cracksmen dynamited the safe in the grocery of M. Heitman & Son here this morning. They got nothing for their trouble as the safe contained no money, but they jeopordized the lives of an entire family which lived over the store and had to fight their way to freedom after the explosion.

There were four men in the crowd. They smashed open the front door of the store and placed a large charge of dynamite in the safe. They retreated across the road while they waited for the explosion. The discharge blew the safe to smithereens and wrecked the store, tearing open the walls and practically demolishing the home of Mrs. Herlui and four children who lived upstairs.

Policeman M. Routie met the quartet as it was leaving the store. He called upon the burglars to surrender. They answered him with pistol shots. He jumped behind a telegraph pole, which was riddled. Several bullets pierced parts of his clothing and one shot made a slight wound on his foot. Then the policeman allowed the marauders to depart in peace. They went towards Painesville and met Gus Mezenbera. He showed fight and they emptied their revolvers at him. He returned the fire.

The Painesville officers were notified by 'phone, but could find no trace of the cracksmen.

Ten Are Dead.

Uegaunee, Mich., Jan. 8.—It was announced at noon today by the officials of the Neguanee mine that at least ten and possibly twelve men lost their lives as a result of the cave in which occurred in that mine yesterday about noon, while the unfortunate men were eating dinner, five thousand feet below the surface.

OFFICIAL HEAD

Of Commissioner Will Come Off as a Result of Some Startling Discoveries Made.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The President and Secretary Gage have unearthed a startling state of affairs at the immigrant station, Ellis Island. It was discovered that disorderly houses in New York and other towns recruited from the immigrants and many are held and deported to whom money for railway travel had been sent by friends in the west. Commissioner Fitchie is not held personally responsible for the abuses, but will lose his official head for not keeping his assistants straight. The whole immigrant office force will be cleaned out.

BANTERS

Of Friends Caused a Marriage on Zanesville's New Bridge—Many Anxious to Try It.

Zanesville, January 8.—Ray Steele and Ida Gatewood were married on the new "Y" bridge yesterday afternoon the ceremony resulting from some good natured banters and dares by the couple's friends. The wedding caused considerable excitement because of the fact that a local merchant has arranged a public wedding for the structure one day this week, when more than $1,000 worth of household furnishings will be presented to the couple. It was thought that these prizes were offered to the first couple to get married on the bridge, but the merchant has specified that he is to select the couple. He has had applications from 20 couples.

A man may pocket his pride, but a woman can't find her pocket.

CHEWED

Nearly to Death by Bloodhounds—The Little Boy's Life is Almost Despaired Of.

Canton, O., Jan. 8.—For many years bloodhounds have been kept at the Stark County Workhouse to trail and capture prisoners who escape that institution. At present they number three. They have not been successful as prisoner trailers, but have just succeeded in lacerating a small boy so fearfully that his life is despaired of.

Howard Dillon, aged 9 years, and two companions were on their way from school, and the dogs attacked them. Two of the lads succeeded in climbing a small building and escaping their fangs. Young Dillon was caught, thrown down and his clothing torn from his body. He received numerous frightful wounds.

Workmen nearby, including the boy's father, drove the dogs away with clubs.

MORE MURDER THAN A DUEL

THE LATEST AFFAIR AROUSING GERMANY.

Army Officers Plan Duel so That a Lieutenant Had Advantage to Kill Student.

Berlin, Jan. 8.—Full particulars of the duel fought last Thursday in Jena, in the Duchy of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenasch in which Lieutenant Thieme, of the Ninety-fourth regiment, killed a student of Halle university named Held by shooting him through the heart, are producing a deep sensation throughout Germany.

Lieutenant Thieme is the best pistol shot in his regiment, and pistols were selected by the court of honor composed exclusively of army officers, notwithstanding the fact that the student societies proposed the use of sabers. The court of honor stipulated that five shots be exchanged between the duelists consequently Held had no chance of escape. He was killed at the third exchange of shots.

The duel resulted from a party of students having jostled some army officers in the street. Held was with the students and slapped the face of Lieutenant Thieme, who was in plain clothes.

About the same time that the court of honor was arranging the details of this Emperor William was receiving New Year congratulations from the German generals. According to gossip current in military messes, the Emperor on this occasion directed that the door of the salon be closed and talked for several minutes about duelling.

The Emperor is reported to have said that so far as he was concerned he did not expect to trouble himself with what the subalterns might do, as he looked to corps commanders and would hold them personally responsible to himself for the prevention of unnecessary duels. Emperor William is also credited with having said that if duels should occur in 1902 similar to some which had taken place in 1901 he would demand resignations.

NEW MAYOR

Of San Francisco Makes His Appointments From the Ranks of the Labor Leaders.

San Francisco, Jan. 8.—James D. Phelan's term as mayor expired at midnight and his successor, Eugene E. Schmitz, the labor candidate, took possession. He was sworn in this morning and delivered his inaugural address. Among the appointments made today is that of Michael Casey, president of the Teamsters' Union, to be Commissioner of Public Works; Harry W. Hutton, Legal Adviser of the Sailors' Union, as Police Commissioner; John Parry, of the Builders' Pile Drivers' Union, Fire Commissioner. They were leaders in the recent water front strike.

PICTURESQUE ROOSEVELT.

The English papers have been filled with reviews of President Roosevelt's career. It is pretty certain that they have made him out to be a picturesque character. The inevitable comparison with the German emperor appears, of course. T. P. O'Connor closes an article by saying: "Renan, when he was close to his last hour, wrote that he would like to survive to the middle of the century, so that he might know the ultimate fate of the young emperor of Germany, whose tumult was then filling and alarming the ears of Europe. If the great philosopher had survived to this hour he probably would have found a subject of equal curiosity and uncertainty in the accession to the presidency of this restless, short, muscular man, as ready with his fists as with his pen, a soldier and literateur, a realist and dreamer, who now occupies the bleak white palace at Washington, from which are ruled the eighty most active, energetic and vital millions of the human race."

THERE SHOULD BE FREE TRADE WITH CUBA.

The assured election of Mr. Palma as president of Cuba ought to impress the United States Congress the more favorably toward the policy of granting to the Cubans an entrance to the American market. Mr. Palma evidently accepts unreservedly the principle of substantial suzerainty which the Platt amendment imposed upon the insular government; certainly, no one doubts that his election was desired by the Washington administration and Governor Leonard Wood. But in order to strengthen Mr. Palma's hands in his work as president of Cuba and make his administration successful, it is now essential that trade privileges be granted by which Cuban industry may be revived. Economic depression would do much to weaken the Palma government and make insurrection possible. And economic depression in its most disastrous way is inevitable unless we open our custom house doors on more liberal terms to Cuban tobacco and sugar growers. It is all important to the industries of Cuba, but it concerns also the people of the United States in giving them cheaper sugar and tobacco. In reality it will be a gain to both people, but greatest to the Cubans. It may prevent outbreaks and civil war on the island.

It is claimed that President Roosevelt is urgent that free trade should be established with Cuba, but it seems that strong opposition is cropping out from the hide-bound protectionists.

An official report from London sets forth the extent to which the Boers have met the overwhelming armies sent to South Africa and the losses inflicted. The total reduction of England's military forces in South Africa since the beginning of the war has been 24,299 men. This includes the dead and the missing. Of this number 19,430 were actually killed or died. A total of 64,330 were invalided home. In the way of comparison the Americans lost 1,476 killed in the war of 1812 with Great Britain, and in the war of the Rebellion the Union forces lost 61,362 killed in battle, 34,727 died of wounds and 183,287 died of disease.

WHAT THE SUGAR TARIFF COSTS.

(Boston Post.)

The sugar trust, which handles cane sugar, wants to gain advantage over the beet sugar people by removing the tariff tax from Cuban sugar. The beet sugar interests want to keep the tax on everything. But free sugar, whether coming from Cuba or anywhere else, would save the American people $85,000,000 a year—more than a dollar a head for the whole population, or $5 for every workingman's family.

NAVAL COURTS OF INQUIRY

(Pittsburg Post.)

Considering that the questions before the naval court of inquiry recently held at Washington were largely of a technical character, or at least turned on the execution or non-execution of orders of a technical nature, the great interest of the public in the testimony and all incidents connected with the proceedings of the court is somewhat remarkable. Few can understand the drift of questions and answers further than that they bear in a certain way on the conduct of Admiral Schley at Cienfuegos and Santiago, and whether he was as energetic in "pushing things" as he should have been under his orders. But little is to be gained in the way of a full understanding by comments on detached bits of testimony.

There is no question that the common sentiment of the people is favorable to Schley and adverse to Admiral Sampson, but that is largely because of incidents with which the court of inquiry failed to give proper consideration.

There have been other naval courts, away back in our naval history, that are recalled by the Schley court, and which were attended with more tragic consequences, and in one of which the brightest star in our naval annals lost his life in a duel. The issues involved were not dissimilar from those in the present controversy. From out of the war of 1812 grew the once celebrated quarrel as to the assignment of credit for the victory over the British fleet in Lake Erie, and Oliver Hazzard Perry and his next ranking officer in command, Captain Elliott wrangled with each other, as did a group of naval critics on each side until a court of inquiry at the instance of Elliott had been ordered to investigate the battle. But after the court had made its findings, which were largely favorable to Elliott, but honorable to both men, the controversy broke out afresh; the commodore was challenged by his rival to a duel, and a meeting on the "field of honor" would probably have eventually ensued had not Perry died while Elliott was still pursuing him with challenges.

The other court in its outcome was darkened by a sad tragedy Very much the same issues were involved as in the Perry and Schley courts. It cost the navy and the country the life of the magnificent Decatur. When, just before the outbreak of the war of 1812, the Chesapeake was over hauled and fired upon by the British Leopard, Captain Barren was charged with making an inglorious surrender of the "deserters" whom the British officer claimed the right to take from the Chesapeake It afterwards appeared that the blame for his action should have rested upon the navy department at Washington quite as much as upon him. A court martial was ordered and Barron, who was really a brave officer, was suspended from the service for several years. But it was his misfortune that the most popular of all heroes of the day, Stephen Decatur, had contracted a prejudice against him. Decatur was a member of the board of officers or commanders before whom his application to be restored to his old place in the navy after the period of his suspension had expired. Decatur made some slighting remarks; Barron declared that he had been insulted, a prolonged correspondence followed; Decatur was charged with the responsibilty for the failure to be assigned to active duty, and finally received from him a challenge. The ending was the fall of Decatur on the field of Bladensburg in a duel to which he was challenged by Baron.

Had the Schley-Sampson feud occurred in those days it certainly would have led to a duel. Public sentiment and naval precedents would have demanded and sanctioned the trial by battle.

AUTOMOBILES IN COMMERCE

Fournier Gives His Views Regarding the Vehicle's Possibilities.

Automobiling is a royal sport, as any one knows who has ridden in the chauffeur's seat of a forty horsepower machine on a well kept country road, writes Henri Fournier in January Success. But I do not plead for the automobile as a pleasure machine. I am not a faddist. The automobile is a commercial necessity. Its place is with the electric street car, the locomotive and the traction engine.

While automobiling is now a fad among well to do Americans, although I think it will find a permanent place in recreation and sport, the future of the automobile does not depend upon its use by pleasure seekers. Its great commercial value is not yet appreciated even by those who are most interested in the development of the machine. It is a great time saver. In America "time is money" more than anywhere else in the world. The great newspapers in their race to get the latest news first to distant parts of their cities now employ automobiles to carry the papers from the pressrooms to the newsstands. They travel faster than the electric cars. To hospitals, to save human lives, send automobile ambulances to transport the injured more safely and quickly to the surgeons. The large shops are greatly improving their delivery service by using automobiles instead of vehicles drawn by horses. The problem of transporting light freight about a large city like New York is being solved by the automobile. Street railways have tried it, but they could not do it successfully because of the interference with passenger traffic and the impossibility of delivering goods away from the few streets where tracks are laid. An automobile delivery wagon does not have its route marked out by rails.

I look to see all the ordinary work of transportation in the great cities of the world, such as New York, London, Paris and Chicago, done without horses, and I think the change will be made much sooner than most people have any idea of. Everything will be done with greater dispatch the streets will be less congested and, most important of all, clean. Think what a crowded thoroughfare like Broadway, New York city, would be with no horses in sight, only motor vehicles speeding about hither and yon!

Wants to Prove Innocence.

London, Jan. 8.—John Murray, who recently surrendered to the police in Ireland, saying he had killed his wife at West Jefferson, O., and who was brought to this country in custody, appeared at the Bow street police court charged with manslaughter. He was remanded one week. Murray made a statement in which he admitted having kicked his wife unintentionally. He said he left West Jefferson because his father-in-law threatened to assault him. He now wishes to return and prove his innocence.

McKinley Day.

Canton, O., Jan 8—Every governor in the United States has been invited by Governor George K. Nash, chairman of the Ohio auxiliary of the McKinley National Memorial association, requesting that each issue an appeal to the citizens of their state or territory to set aside Jan. 29, McKinley's birthday as "McKinley day." This action was brought about by the desire of the committee to make the day one of universal observance.

Love Tragedy.

Knox, Ind., Jan. 8. — Henry Clements, 19, shot and instantly killed Mrs. Edward Davis at her home here. Clements then shot himself in the head, inflicting what will probably be a fatal wound. Clements and his victim were engaged, but a week ago she married Edward Davis. The shooting occurred in the presence of her husband and mother. Clements called her outside the house, and after a short interview shot her dead.

Gorman For Senator.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 8.—The Maryland general assembly has re-assembled. But little business will be transacted pending the election of United States senator. The Democrats will hold their caucus for this tonight. There appears to be no doubt that ex-Senator Arthur P. Gorman will be the only nominee.

Town Burned Out.

Logansport, La., Jan. 8.—Fire that started in the general store of H. B. Liles burned the business portion of the town, consisting of 33 buildings. Total loss, $125,000; insurance, $75,000. The fire originated from a defective flue.

Valuable Bull.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The Hereford bull, "Perfection 9291," was sold for $9,000 at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago. This is the highest price ever paid in America for a Hereford, and the highest price in recent years for a bull or cow of any breed. Perfection was the champion Hereford bull of the International live stock exhibition in December. He headed the list of 60 animals sold by Thomas Clark of Beher, Ills., and was purchased by Gilbert H. Hoxie, whose farms are at Thornton, Ills. and Taylor, Tex.

NEW NERVE DISCOVERY

Famous Scientist Explains Dr. Loeb's Theory of Life.

ELECTRICITY THE PRIME FACTOR.

Professor Serviss Claims the Discovery Comes Closer to the Solution of the Mystery of Vitality Than Physiologists Have Ever Approached. Light on Obscure Problems.

Professor Jacques Loeb of the University of Chicago declared recently before the gathering of physiologists in Chicago that he had discovered the physical processes that accompany life, that electricity and not heat energy is the basis of life. Professor Garrett P. Serviss, in explaining this discovery for the New York Journal, says:

The great discovery concerning the nature and manner of action of the human nerves announced by Dr. Albert F. Mathews to the American Physiological society in Chicago and backed by the authoritative approval of Professor Jacques Loeb of the Chicago university is so fundamental and so farreaching in its consequences that it seems to warrant the hope that we shall soon know what are the conditions and the limits of man's power to prolong his own life. It comes closer to the solution of the mystery of vitality than physiologists have ever before been able to approach.

Some of the experiments that have led up to this discovery have suggested a new idea of the nature of death and have resulted in the case of the rudimentary forms of life experimented with in the indefinite postponement of dissolution. Even the discoverers do not think that they can indicate the real depths to which they have reached or toward which they are being led. The whole foundation of physiology and medicine may be reconstructed, and we may find that we possess a control over the phenomena of life more masterful than anybody has yet dared to dream.

Let us see what, in plain terms, the discovery is and why it is so farreaching. Briefly stated, it has been discovered that our nerves, or at least the inner cores of them, consist of what is called a colloidal solution—that is to say, of matter resembling gelatin held in solution in water before it has jellied or assumed the state of a stiffened elastic mass, and these colloidal particles in the nerves carry charges of positive electricity.

Whenever the nerve particles pass from the colloidal condition into the state of gelatin, or, in other words, become jellied, the nerve experiences a stimulation or becomes active. Now, this passage of the nerves from the dissolved to the jellied state is produced by the action of atoms or ions bearing charges of negative electricity. Whenever such charges are introduced into the nerves the latter are stimulated and contract.

This fact at once explains the action of certain chemical substances when introduced into the human body, some of which tend to quiet the nerves and others to excite them. The nerve quieting ions are those that bear charges of positive electricity, such as the atoms of sodium, potassium, calcium and hydrogen, and their presence tends to keep the colloidal particles of the nerves in a state of solution, so that the nerves remain inactive.

The nerve stimulating ions are the atoms of such substances as fluorine and chlorine, which carry charges of negative electricity and when introduced into the system cause the nerve particles to coalesce or become jellied, in which condition the nerve is active, the degree of activity depending upon the intensity of the stimulation. Death appears to be the result of the stagnation of the nerves, resulting from inability to respond to stimulation. How far the discovery of the manner in which nerve action is or can be produced will enable physiologists to oppose the processes that end in death can only be determined by further experiments.

But without regard to any such possible or only to be hoped for results the new discovery throws a flood of light on many hitherto obscure problems. It offers a clear explanation, for instance, of the effect of anæsthetics upon the body. Anything that tends to keep the nerve particles in a state of solution quiets the nerves. Now, the nerve particles are largely composed of fat, and it is well known that all anæsthetics dissolve fat; hence when anæsthetics are introduced into the system they produce the effect of positively electrified ions in preventing the nerve particles from coalescing, and thus they quiet the nerves.

In a similar manner the action of whisky in arresting the progress of snake poison is explained, since snake poison tends to coagulate the nerve substance, thus causing death, while alcohol if introduced quickly enough counteracts the coagulating tendency and keeps the nerves in a colloidal condition.

Other familiar facts are also explained on the same principle. Heat, for instance, as everybody knows, tends to quiet the nerves, provided the temperature is not too high, the reason being that the effect of heat is to prevent coagulation of the nerve substance. Cold, on the contrary, produces gelation in the nerves and consequent stimulation. But at high temperatures heat also produces gelation and stimulation.

One of the interesting conclusions drawn from the discovery is that chemical stimulation is identical with electrical stimulation, because the chemical substances that affect the nerves do so through the electrical charges that they carry. No doubt many theorists will endeavor to base upon this fact electrical cures for disease, but only the most careful experimentation in the hands of thoroughly scientific men can be depended upon to give any valuable results.

Another suggestive fact is that an identity of stimulative action is indicated between chemical ions and light waves. The short light waves toward the ultra violet end of the spectrum are in their action similar to the negative ions which stimulate the nerves, while the long waves toward the red end resemble in their action the positive ions which quiet the nerves. Thus a whole field of speculation is opened up concerning the therapeutic value of light and the means of applying it for the relief of human ills and the prolongation of life.

One other long standing puzzle that the new discovery solves is that of muscular contractility. In what manner, physiologists had often inquired, does the action of the nerves cause the muscles to respond by contracting? The explanation now seems plain. As the nerve substance coagulates it necessarily contracts, and negative electricity, given off from the contracted surfaces of the particles, passes on in a current through the length of the nerve. But the muscles also contain colloidal particles, and as these receive the impulse of the negative current they also draw together, and thus contraction of the muscles is produced.

SET LEG WITH AN UMBRELLA

Injured Doctor Used the Steel Frame In Operation on Himself.

Because his knowledge of surgery told him that he had received a severe wound which needed appliances which were not at hand Dr. Walter Lester Carr of New York tore his umbrella into strips and with these and the ribs made a splint and bandages for his broken leg, says the New York Herald. He was on a street car a few days ago on his way to attend a consultation in New Jersey. It was a murky day, and the streets were slippery with mud. At the Pennsylvania ferry at Twenty-third street he signaled to the conductor and a moment later swung off the car. He missed his footing and was thrown. His leg bent under him, and as he sank down he realized that he was badly hurt. Bystanders assisted him to a neighboring doorway.

Declining offers of further assistance, he himself made an examination of his injury. Pressing his fingers into his leg as relentlessly as any physician will a patient, he discovered a compound fracture. Realizing the need of speedy treatment and pressing the bones into place the best he could, he looked about for splints and bandages. There was none at hand, but his umbrella was there.

Quickly tearing the cover from the frame, he ripped this into strips, and a few more jerks separated the steel ribs. He placed the rods about his leg, with the strips of cloth, his handkerchief and necktie, and drew all tightly together, holding the broken bones in their places.

An ambulance had already been summoned, and when it arrived Dr. Carr had completed an emergency treatment equal to that of the average ambulance surgeon with all the material at hand. He was taken to the New York hospital and is now in one of the rooms in the private patients' wing of the institution. The news of his unique treatment of his own injury only recently became known and has been confirmed by Mrs. Carr.

MODEL CITY AT ST. LOUIS.

Ideal Public Works Will Be Shown at the World's Fair.

Howard J. Rogers, chief of the departments of education and social economy of the St. Louis World's fair, was in New York recently to confer with the special committee which is planning the "model city" feature of the fair, says the New York World. The committee consists of Charles C. Height, John De Witt Warner, Charles R. Lamb, Albert Kelsey of Philadelphia and William S. Crandall. The conference was held at the National Art club in New York.

The Administration building will be taken as the municipal center of the model city, and around it will be grouped some of the most important administrative buildings found in a well developed city, such as public library, hospital, museum, public school, fire headquarters, police headquarters and at points adapted to such uses a garbage crematory and a filtration plant for purifying the water supply. There will be sample pavements of the various kinds in use in American cities, with everything else that is used above the street, on the street or underneath, all of which will be models of their kind. In addition there will be a classified exhibition showing municipal conditions as they are in American and European cities.

The Coronation Bible.

King Edward VII. has already ordered the coronation Bible from the British and Foreign Bible society to be used in Westminster abbey next June. It will be a large quarto volume, bound in red morocco, with gold clasps and stamped with the royal arms. It will become the property of the bishop who administers the oaths.

Governor Shaw Has Twelve Toes.

Persons who like to know all about physical peculiarities of public men will be interested in the information, according to the Washington correspondent of the New York Herald, that Governor Shaw of Iowa, the new secretary of the treasury, has six toes on each foot.

Prescribed by Her Physician.

Neosha Falls, Kans., Nov. 13, 1900.
Pepsin Syrup Co., Monticello, Ill.

Dear Sirs:—For almost fifteen years I suffered from indigestion and last winter thought I would die, when my physician, Dr. A. J. Licurance of this place, advised my trying Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which I did, and two bottles cured me. It not only relieved me, but it cured me so that I have not been troubled since.

If any one should offer me $500 for the good Syrup Pepsin has done me, one can take your medicine without being convinced of its more than wonderful cures. I recommend it to all my friends as a laxative and stomach remedy. Yours with gratitude,

MRS. J. MORGAN.

THE PRACTICAL Versus THE IDEAL

[Original.]

There are people in the world who never act unwisely and yet never get on. On the contrary, there are people who always act unwisely and yet always get on. The explanation may be in the fact that the former have no originality to lift them above the level of competition and the latter have genius.

My wife soon after we were married developed a passion for what I called old frumpery. She attended auctions, and any hideous rug, rickety clock or crazy chair put up for sale was sure to be bid in by her to lumber up the house. As to bric-a-brac, I couldn't turn round without smashing some ungainly pitcher, big at the girth and little at the bottom, especially made to be knocked over. There were old swords, old blunderbusses, pieces of armor, rugs so homely that it would make one sick to walk over them, engravings yellow with age, pieces of tapestry with pictures on them of stiff looking people looking sour as vinegar. In short, everything in the house was either old or ugly or both.

A practical man, with no nonsense about me, I managed to keep the wolf from the door as a bookkeeper. I had inherited $5,000 from my father, which I placed in a savings bank to draw 3 per cent interest. It did not remain there long. My wife's insane passion for auction purchases ate into it gradually, but surely, till my nest egg had been turned into a lot of miscellaneous truck which any sane man would consider fit only for a junkshop.

Mrs. Moneypenny had friends who were as crazy on this subject as herself. They would come into the house and go from room to room admiring this bit of coffee colored lace, fit only for a rag bag; that miniature of some fat woman, with a coronet on her head, in a chipped oval frame; a clock with a pair of rusty weights weighing perhaps twenty pounds each and the sound of a donkey engine in winding. Then they would go away, thanking her for showing them her "collection."

"My dear," I said one day to her despairingly, "my $5,000 is reduced to five hundred."

"Five hundred! Then I made a mistake in my figures. I thought there was only three hundred. After all, I can get it."

"Get what?" I cried, aghast.

"The Rembrandt! I have absolute proof that it is genuine, and it is going for a song."

"Oh, heavens," I muttered, sinking on to a sofa—"to be tied to a lunatic! And to think what is to become of our poor children!"

She sat down beside me and put her arms about me, but said nothing. What could she say? She was under the control of her passion, with no power to resist it. She must be not only dragged down to poverty herself, but drag husband and children with her. Within forty-eight hours she had the last cent in the savings bank and got her picture, a dingy painting of a man dressed like a supernumerary in a theater, the only feature plainly visible being the tip of a red nose.

The day after the thing was brought home one of her friends, a lady, met me on the street and congratulated me on the valuable addition to my "collection."

I stared at her grimly and passed on, while she looked at me, wondering if I had lost my senses.

Going home, I abused my wife for an hour. She was patient about it and made no reply, but at last, when I begged her to get rid of the stuff and reform, she agreed to do so.

"Very well," I replied. "I will send for Moses, who will make you a bid for the lot. We may get a few hundred dollars out of it."

"Leave that to me, dear," she replied. "You haven't time. Go to business, and I will do all that is necessary."

The next day the morning paper contained a notice that Mrs. Moneypenny was to sell at auction her treasures, which she had been years accumulating, as she was about to go abroad to make another "collection."

At sight of this announcement I nearly fainted, but revived on remembering that the rubbage was to be sold.

For days before the sale I was beset by people with printed lists in their hands asking me what such a number could be had for at private sale. I turned away from all, saying that I didn't know and I didn't care—probably a dollar would secure anything in the lot, and it would be a large price.

Well, the sale came off. I was busy at the office making a trial balance and got home after it was all over. Everybody had gone, and I found my wife looking depressed. When I saw the house devoid of the trumpery with which it had been incumbered, I rejoiced.

"Thank heaven," I exclaimed, "it's gone! What did you save out of the wreck?"

"Unluckily, two of the persons I expected would take the most of it at the largest prices were suddenly called away, and that spoiled everything."

"How much?" I asked.

"I had figured on $25,000, but I didn't get it."

"You mean $250?"

"No; the total is $17,950, and four thousand of this is for the Rembrandt. The rest went very cheap—that is, considering what it ought to have brought."

Of course I supposed she was joking till I saw the bank certificate of deposit. The next week, as advertised, my wife went abroad for a new "collection," from which she cleared $21,000. We are now rich. I have resigned my position and am usually spoken of as Mrs. Moneypenny's husband.

MRS. WINFIELD SCOTT SCHLEY.

Here is a picture of the wife of a man who for the last two or three months has been perhaps more talked about than any other person in public life. But, while almost every one knows a great deal about Rear Admiral Schley, few have heard anything at all about Mrs. Schley. She has consistently kept in the background during the long controversy, being naturally of a retiring disposition.

TO RESEED THE RANGES

Move of Railroads For the Good of Western Plains.

MATTER OF VAST IMPORTANCE.

Plan to Be Tried Is to Sow Three Thousand Acres to Different Grasses to See Which Is the Most Suitable. Proposed to Begin the Work Early Next Spring.

It has just been given out by railroads with headquarters in Omaha, Neb., that a plan is now on foot which contemplates the ultimate reseeding of all the western ranges, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The preliminary portion of the scheme, itself a work of great magnitude, involves extensive experimenting with the cultivation of different range grass seeds with a view to determining those best suited to the purpose.

This proposition is one of great significance and many ramifications. Should it be carried to a successful issue the ranges of Utah, Nebraska, Wyoming, Montana, Nevada and Idaho will be vastly affected. If the proper grass plant can be found, the different railroads interested in these states will go to great expense to further the plant.

The railroads expect the government to help promote the scheme as soon as they show the matter to be practical. The different states to be benefited will also be asked to contribute a share of the general expense incurred in carrying the plans to maturity.

The men who are at the head of the plans declare the scheme for reseeding the ranges to be of more importance to the country than irrigation, because the former will if carried out be far more extensive in its scope and in the benefits resulting from its adoption. The territory which can be benefited by irrigation is limited because of the inability to secure more than a certain amount of water from certain streams. The territory to be benefited by reseeding is only limited by the extent of the ranges of the west.

The entire plan is said to be so well mapped out that the actual working out of the first step will begin with the early spring. R. C. Judson, industrial agent of the Oregon Railway and Navigation company, is said to be slated for the experimental part which will be first attempted. He is now in charge of the experimental farm of his road at Walla Walla, Wash., and is already making careful preliminary tests along the line suggested.

Western ranges have been very much impoverished and injured by overcrowding of herds in the past few years. Sheep particularly have been the cause of the trouble, as they are very destructive to grasses. What they do not dig out with their sharp teeth they punch in with their equally sharp hoofs, and if bunched beyond a reasonable limit they can entirely destroy all growth except the sage grass.

As a result of the deterioration of the range in many places it now requires two and three times as many acres to provide for a given number of cattle as formerly. The railroads expect by reseeding to so improve these ranges that they will provide for a larger number than originally.

For the conduct of the experimental part of the work the following plan has been determined upon. A spot containing some 3,000 acres will be fenced off in some centrally located range. This will be divided into thirty plots for the trying out of as many different grasses. The central idea will be to find some grass which will be permanent, luxuriant and hardy. Seeds from all over the world will be used, and many from Africa and South America have already been received.

When the correct grass is found, the government and states will be called upon to actively co-operate with the railroads to reseed the plains. The government will be asked to make a large appropriation for the purchase and sowing of the seed throughout the range country and the state will be asked to provide for state lands everywhere.

All of this will mean an enormous work, but each passing year renders it more imperative. The greatest part of the work will be the protection of that part of the country reseeded until the new grass has sufficient start to maintain itself. This is a vast problem, and the government will be called upon to bring its authority to bear in the matter.

Saved by Her Poodle.

Miss Margaret Tolle of Litchfield, Ill., was the guest of Miss Birdie Kilpatrick of St. Louis on Christmas day. She took a walk with her poodle dog and fell into an eighteen foot well. She was bruised and too weak to even call for help. Her faithful little dog ran back to the Kilpatrick house and began whining and grabbing with its teeth at the clothing of Miss Kilpatrick and her brothers and sisters, says the New York World. They finally understood that the dog wished them to follow him. They found Miss Tolle unconscious in the well. Her injuries are serious, and she certainly would have perished but for her dog's sagacity.

GUTHREY GUY CLARKE-BENSON

[Original.]

"We hear a great deal about the Russian detective and how he will follow a mystery to the end of the earth," said a gentleman the other day in the smoking compartment of a drawing room car on the New York Central railroad. "It's my opinion that our detectives right here in America are about as wideawake as any in the world."

"D'you think so?" said a red whiskered man seated by the window in a tone indicating that he was of a different opinion.

"I am sure of it," said the other. "I am aware that Scotland Yard is held up as a model for detective work, but Scotland Yard could learn any day from some of our first class detective agencies."

"What d'you know about it anyway?" asked the red whiskered man.

"Well, our firm was robbed several years ago of some securities—we're stockbrokers—and I was the member of the firm who took the matter in charge. I found a detective who traced the thief in no time and recovered all the property. He was smart as chain lightning. He told me of many intricate cases he had followed, showing me just how he had worked them up. He said they were blind as bats at Scotland Yard."

The man by the window gave a snort.

"Many Englishmen are of the same opinion," the speaker persisted. "Scotland Yard was once a home for remarkable detective work. It is now very much run down."

"I know better," said the red whiskered man, goaded by this disparagement. "Scotland Yard is the best in the world."

"How do you know?"

"I've seen the way they work."

"Perhaps you can cite a case?"

The man turned and looked out of the window, but he was evidently a loyal Briton and could not bear to hear any British institution attacked.

"I'll do it," he said, turning from the scene without. "One of my intimate friends, Lord Blandery, gave a party at his country seat, and I was among the guests. The morning we were all to leave, the family jewels were missing. There were fifty guests about to depart, and one of them might be the thief. Lord Blandery didn't like to propose a search, but I have a fancy for detective work and made up my mind to spot the thief. Lord Blandery acceded to my request to permit no one to leave the house until I gave the word, then told me all about the missing property, showing me a few things that were left.

"'Here,' he said, 'among other things, is a mosaic sleeve button. The other has been stolen. I bought them in Rome several years ago.'

"'There is a clew,' I said, 'in case we fail to find the thief here. I'll take it to a man I know in Scotland Yard, and I'll lay you a hundred pounds he'll return your jewelry. He'll find its mate and by that means the thief.'

"Well, every guest was searched, I leading the way. We took our leave, and I left the sleeve button at Scotland Yard.

"Soon after Lord Blandery's valet found another place and left his lordship's services. One month later he was found dancing at a servants' ball, wearing a mosaic scarfpin. A detective from Scotland Yard who had kept an eye on him ever since he had left Lord Blandery walked up to him and placed the missing sleeve button beside the pin. They were identical. The valet, not being able to make use of a single sleeve button, had had it turned into a scarfpin. Lord Blandery recovered a hundred thousand pounds' worth of jewelry and paid me the wager, and I secured the scarfpin from Scotland Yard as a memento."

"I don't believe that yarn," said the champion of the American detective.

"I'll show you the pin. I have it right here in my pocket." And, drawing out a small jewel box, he opened it and produced a mosaic pin of a very peculiar pattern.

"Tom Rourke," said the doubter, "you are the biggest liar in the world, as well as the biggest thief. You have fallen a victim to your insane desire to overtop everybody else. For trying to down me you'll get twenty years of penal servitude when I get you back to London. I've been following you for six months. Here is the mate to your transformed sleeve button."

He pulled up his coat sleeve, and there in one of his cuffs was a mosaic button, the counterpart of the pin.

"Who are you?" exclaimed the friend of Lord Blandery, paling.

"I'm Peter Yorke of Pinkertons. Scotland Yard got this sleeve button from Lord Marivale, not Lord Blandery, as you have named him. There was no valet in the case, but one of Lord Marivale's guests was Guthrey Guy Clarke-Benson, who had brought forged letters of introduction from Melbourne. Soon after the robbery he disappeared, and the forgery was discovered. It was believed that he had sailed for America. The remaining button was sent to our New York office, and I was put on the case. I knew you for Tom Rourke, who had done ten years for burglary, but I was not sure that you had sailed among the bloods of England under the aristocratic name of Guthrey Guy Clarke-Benson."

As he spoke he took from his pocket a pair of handcuffs. The man at the window moved his hand, when the detective whipped out a revolver. Then Tom Rourke, alias Guthrey Guy Clarke-Benson, received the bracelets resignedly.

HEART DISEASE.

Ninety Per Cent of It Really Caused From Poor Digestion.

Real organic heart trouble is incurable, but scarcely one case in a hundred is organic.

The action of the heart and stomach are both controlled by the same great nerves, the sympathetic and pneumogastric, and when the stomach fails to properly digest the food and it lies in the stomach fermenting, gases are formed which distend the organ causing pressure on the heart and lungs, causing palpitation, irregularity and shortness of breath.

The danger from this condition is that the continued disturbance of the heart sooner or later may cause real organic heart trouble and in fact frequently does so.

Furthermore, poor digestion makes the blood thin and watery, and deficient in red corpuscles, and this further irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible thing to do for heart trouble is to insure the digestion and assimilation of the food.

This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets which may be found at most drug stores, and which contain the necessary digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

Thousands of people keep well and vigorous by keeping their digestion perfect by observing the rule of taking one or two of these tablets after each meal, or at least after each hearty meal.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain U. S. P. pepsin, diastase from malt and other natural digestives which act only on the food, digesting it perfectly and preventing acidity, gases, and the many diseased conditions which accompany a weak stomach.

When Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used you may know you are not taking into the system any strong medicine or powerful drug but simply the natural digestive elements which every weak stomach lacks.

So widely known and popular have these tablets become that they are now sold by every druggist in the United States, Canada and Great Britain.

REPLEVIN SUIT.

The replevin suit of Charles Whitehead vs. J. K. Wise is on trial before 'Squire J. R. Atcherley and a jury this afternoon. The plaintiff seeks to get possession of a gray mare, which was in charge of Hosmer Biggs, and was in his (Whitehead's) stable, from where it is alleged Wise took her unlawfully. Wise answered that he traded with Biggs, and took a colt to Whitehead's and left it there in place of the gray mare. Smythe for plaintiff, Fitzgibbon for defendant Wise.

Tuesday Evening Alarm.

An alarm of fire from box 22 at about 5 o'clock Tuesday evening, called the central department to North Newark. The sky was brilliantly lighted up and it was evident that there was a fire north of the box. The department went north to the corporation line, where they discovered that the swamp grass was on fire. As it would have taken 2,500 or 3,000 feet of hose to have reached the fire, and it was then almost burned out, the firemen returned. The grass caught from a passing locomotive.

Prominent Rabbi.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 8.—Dr. Adolph Moses, rabbi of Adas Israel temple in this city since 1881, is dead of paralysis of the heart. Dr. Moses came of a family of rabbis. He was a native of Santomishel, in Posen, the Polish province of Prussia, and was born in May, 1840. His father was Rabbi J. L. Moses. In 1870 he came to this country and took charge of a synagogue in Montgomery, Ala., and later one at Mobile. During his stay at Mobile, Dr. Moses and Rabbi Wise, of Cincinnati, headed the movement for reformed Judaism, which has since so generally prevailed.

Alleged Lottery Swindle.

Buffalo, Jan. 8.—What is regarded by the federal authorities as a well developed lottery swindle was brought to light here. Andrew Gifford, a barber, was arrested, charged with having used the mails for fraudulent purposes. It is stated by the federal officers that no drawings were held by the "lottery," purchasers of tickets never having had a chance to win. Postoffice Inspector Cochran found piles of unused lottery tickets, circulars and a large number of envelopes bearing postmarks of places in New York, Canada, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana.

FOR THE PHILIPPINES

Bill Providing Complete Form of Civil Government.

TO TAKE EFFECT TWO YEARS HENCE.

Panama and Nicaragua Canal Routes the Subject of Debate and a Resolution Aiming at the Investigation of an Alleged Conspiracy—Doings of the Day in House and Senate.

Washington, Jan. 8.—In the house, Representative Cooper (Wis.) chairman of the house committee on insular affairs, introduced a bill giving a complete form of incular government for the Philippines, to begin Jan. 1, 1904, with a governor appointed by the president, a legislature of two houses, and with two Philippine commissioners to represent the Philippine people at Washington. In other respects the Cooper bill follows that of Senator Lodge.

Debate on the Nicaragua canal bill was opened in lively fashion by Mr. Hepburn, chairman of the interstate and foreign commerce commission, which reported the bill. For two hours he held the floor, replying to a volley of questions concerning the recent offer of the Panama Canal company to sell its property and franchises to the United States for $40,000000. The interest in the debate centered almost entirely in this new psase of the subject. Mr. Hepburn maintained that the alleged new offer of the Panama company was part of the plan of delay. He pointed out what he claimed was the suspicious circumstance that the Panama held out for $109,000,000 until it was decided oefore the holiday recess to consider the Nicaragua bill, and then suddenly dropped the price to $40,000,000. Mr. Morris (Minn.) gave notice that at the proper time he would offer an amendment to authorize the president, if he could procure the property and rights of the Panama company for $40,000,000, if concessions could be procured from Colombia and if the Walker commission so recommended, to purchase and proceed to complete the Panama canal. The other speakers were Messrs. Davis (Fla.), Richardson (Ala.), Mann (Ills.) and Adams (Pa.).

Mr. Hepburn, in his remarks, said he had no doubt about the right of the United States to defend the canal and to do it in any way that seems wise to the United States. If that involves the erection of fortifications at the termini of the canal or of stockades at the sites of the important works, he had no doubt about the authority of the United States to do it, and that it would exercise that authority.

Morgan's Resolution.

The contest between the Nicaragua and Panama routes for the isthmian canal was opened in the senate when Mr. Morgan offered and secured the adoption of a resolution which indicated his purpose to have the committee on interoceanic canals inquire into the relations alleged to exist between the transcontinental railroad companies of the United States and Canada and the Panama Canal company. In explanation of the resolution Mr. Morgan declared that the alleged relations were "a wicked monopoly," which already had cost the people of the Pacific coast millions of dollars. The relations involve the control by the Panama Canal company of the Panama Canal company and the agreement existing between certain railroads of the United States and the Pacific Mail Steamship company.

Senator Mason introduced several amendments to the proposed Philippine tariff bill. The amendments suggest as a substitute for section 1 of the bill the provisions of the tariff bill enacted by the Philippine commission. It is also provided that Filipino exports or imports from or to the United States shall pay only 50 per cent of the rate on articles coming from or exported to foreign countries. Another provision places American woods and articles manufactured from wood, meats, fish, dried fruits, grains, vegetables and seeds and forage on the free list. Another amendment strikes out the provision in the pending bill requiring the payment of a tonnage tax on vessels coming into the United States from the Philippines.

Over 300 bills and joint resolutions were introduced in the senate, of which the following were the most important: Providing for the erection of a postoffice building in New York, the building to be "substantial and commodious and centrally located," and appropriating $2,500,000 toward this purpose; requiring that contractors carrying the mails of the United States shall be able to read the English language; increasing pension ratings on account of wounds, disease or injuries received while in the line of duty.

Costume of Diamonds.

London, Jan. 8.—The victim of the recent jewel robbery, the Marquis of Anglesey, is running his own pantomime of "Aladdin" in his private theater at Anglesey castle. The supporting company is mainly professional, but the marquis, as "Pekoe, the Vizier's Son," takes a prominent role, and in the great scene of the cave jewels dances a butterfly dance, glittering head to foot with diamonds.

New Trial For Captain King.

New Orleans Jan. 8.—Captain Cyril W. King, the United States volunteer army officer and assistant quartermaster under sentence at Mobile for accepting bribes in connection with the erection of barracks at Fort Morgan, near Mobile, was granted a new trial by the United States circuit court of appeals, sitting at New Orleans.

NEW ORDER

AMERICAN PROTECTIVE UNION ELECTS OFFICERS.

Installation Will Take Place Next Week—Charter List Now Numbers 86—Charter Open.

The American Protective Union held their meeting Tuesday night at the K. of P. Hall, with a large attendance of charter members. The benefits of the order were fully explained by Hon. Wm. E. Miller, Dr. I. N. Palmer, W. G. Taafel and A. L. Simons, also very encouraging remarks were made by Dr. S. H. McCleery and J. H. Spettel. Important business was transacted and the corner stone of the American Protective Union was successfully laid. Its progress is assured as this order is founded with the best principles of any in this country and deserves the full confidence and support of the public. Success was fully manifested at this meeting, as Newark Council No. 1 has been instituted with 86 members, composed of some of the best business men of the city.

The following officers were elected:
Past President, Gil C. Daugherty.
President, Jos. M. Spettel.
Secretary, Dr. S. H. McCleery.
Medical Director, Dr. J. W. Hornby.
Master of Ceremonies, John H. Diai.
Warden, Geo. W. Abbott.
Guide, Jos. Reichert.
Guard, Herman Reichert.
Sentry, Jos. H. Parks.

Owing to the late hour the installation of officers was deferred until next week at which time a banquet will be given by the supreme officers.

It was decided to leave the charter open for two more weeks and members will be admitted for $1 to full membership. Watch this paper for further notice.

VISIT

Of General Andrade to the Isthmus Doubtless Has an Important Political Significance.

Colon, Colombia, Jan. 8. — General Ignacio Andrade, the former president of Venezuela, who arrived here on Jan. 4 from Willemstadt, island of Curacao, has had a long interview with General Carlos Alban, the military commander of this district. General Alban received General Andrade at the railroad station when the latter reached Panama. The visit of General Andrade to the isthmus doubtless has an important political significance. In referring to Germany's claims against Venezuela, General Andrade said that he did not believe Germany would press these claims at present, but that she would prefer to deal with the faction now opposing the president of Venezuela, Cipriano Castro. He says that none of the claims Venezuela is now being called upon to pay originated under his administration of that country.

THE COURTS.

PETITION FOR AN INJUNCTION IS FILED.

Several Cases Before Judge Jones of Common Pleas Bench—'Squires' Courts—Realty Transfers.

A petition for an injunction was filed in Common Pleas Court Wednesday morning by E. J. Maurath vs. R. H. Nutter, the Buckeye Fire Clay company, and the City of Newark.

The plaintiff says that on Nov. 9, 1900, he entered into an agreement with the defendant Nutter and the Buckeye company by which the plaintiff was to aid said Nutter in obtaining a contract for the construction of a sewer on Cedar street, and to aid him financially in the construction of said sewer; to furnish bondsmen, pay the freight bills and the defendant Fire Clay company agreed to furnish the tile for the sewer and to furnish the money necessary to construct the sewer. That plaintiff was agent for the fire Clay company; that Nutter was to obtain the contract in his own name, and to superintend the construction at agreed price of $2 per day; that the net profits should be divided; that Nutter obtained the contract and constructed the sewer; that a net profit resulted of $600; that Maurath's share is $200; that Nutter refuses to pay the sum of $200; that $375 is held by the city; that Nutter is insolvent and not responsible. Plaintiff asks that the city be enjoined from paying said sum of $375 to Nutter. A temporary restraining order was granted as prayed for.

COMMON PLEAS COURT.

Francis D. Parr, executor vs. James M. Brown, submitted to Court and judgment for $185. No record. Kibler & Kibler; Jones.

Elind Shrader, administrator, vs. Amanda Maholm et al, argued and submitted to Court on demurrer to amend petition. Follett & Follett; Hunter, Swartz, Jones.

Smith & Norris vs. Martha Eddy et al, a suit to enforce a mechanic's lien. Argued on demurrer, and submitted. Norpell; Daugherty, Reese.

Jeremiah Williams & Co. and Conrad Troll's Sons vs. Henry Neihers, demurrer overruled and leave to answer; Daugherty; Swartz, Hunter.

IN 'SQUIRE'S COURT.

The case of John Davis vs. J. F. Lingafelter, in which plaintiff sought to recover over $200 compensation alleged to be due for laying of a cement pavement was decided Tuesday in 'Squire Crilly's court, the jury returning a verdict for the defendant. Mr. Lingafelter. Fitzgibbon for plaintiff. Smythe & Smythe for the defendant. The case has occupied about four days in trial.

POLICE COURT

WOMAN ACCUSED OF STEALING FIFTEEN DOLLARS.

Police Do Not Take Stock in the Roby Affair—The Day's Police News.

Eva Shultie was arrested by Officers Callan and Sutton on complaint of Charles Foster, who charges her with stealing $15 from a sideboard drawer. Her trial was set for this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Sam Emmery was arrested by Officers Zergiebel and Rinehart for being drunk and asleep on the street. He was fined $1 and costs.

The Marshal and police do not take any stock in the story of the robbery of Captain William Roby, Deputy U. S. Revenue Collector for this district, as detailed by him to the reporters. They point to the fact that where Roby says he was knocked down, and went down the canal bank onto the ice, there is a 10 foot stone wall, sheer into the canal and at this place there is no ice on the canal, as the water runs too swiftly from the adjacent lock to freeze. Had he gone into the canal at this point he would have gotten wet, which he did not. The valise which was found was in the same condition as when in his possession, and no attempt had been made to open it.

Their theory is that Roby lost his valise and that his injuries were sustained by falling down.

BUCKEYE LAKE ROAD.

Buckeye Lake, Jan. 8.—Workmen are now clearing the timber from the bank of the lake for the purpose of grading the proposed route of the electric railroad towards Lakeside. It is hoped that cars will be running to this place by spring.

The distance from this place to Hebron is about two miles and part of the construction work is done. The grading is finished, poles set, ties and rails distributed.

NEW GAS WELL.

Homer, O., Jan. 8.—Work has been commenced on the Smythe gas well. The engine and boiler from the Fulton gas well have been taken to the Miller farm where work will begin soon.

GRANGE OFFICERS.

Homer, O., Jan. 8.—Licking Valley Grange elected officers for the ensuing year Thursday night as follows:
Master, W. B. Williams.
Overseer, Dell Bash.
Lecturer, B. J. Smith.
Steward, H. W. Maddox.
Chaplain, Lizzie Yoakam.
Treasurer, Mark Looker.
Secretary, J. Frank Yoakam.

More British Killed.

London, Jan. 8. — Lord Kitchener, telegraphing from Johannesburg Jan. 6, reports a number of skirmishes in various parts of the war field. The most serious were at Mersfoort, Jan. 3 and 4, when Major W. H. Plomer and Colonel J. S. Pens were in contact with Christian Botha's and Opperman's commands, driving the Boers from their positions after considerable fighting, during which the Somerset light infantry suffered severely. Major Vallentin and 10 men were killed and five officers and 28 men were wounded. The Boers left nine men dead on the field.

Crisis Reached.

City of Mexico, Jan. 8.—The arbitration situation has reached a crisis. The Central and South Americans opposed to the Chileans held frequent meetings to decide on the form of proceedure upon which they will introduce the arbitration plan into the conference. If they can not find a form acceptable to the other delegations they will probably withdraw. The Chileans also say that in whatever form the compulsory arbitration plan is reported to the conference they will quit.

Dynamite Exploded.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—An explosion of dynamite occurred in a contractor's toolhouse beside the Pennsylvania tracks in West Philadelphia. "Doc" Mullen, a watchman employed by P. McManus, a contractor, was literally blown to atoms and a dozen persons living in the vicinity were cut by flying glass from the shattered windows of their houses.

Porto Rico's Request.

San Juan, P. R., Jan. 8.—The Porto Rican legislative assembly has adopted a joint resolution concerning the establishment of a United States naval establishment in Porto Rican waters. Copies of this resolution were mailed to President Roosevelt.

Embezzlement Charged.

Manistique, Mich., Jan. 8. — V. P. Chappel, former treasurer, has been arrested on the charge of embezzling county funds to the extent of $7,300. Chappel asserts that poor bookkeeping is responsible for apparent shortage.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

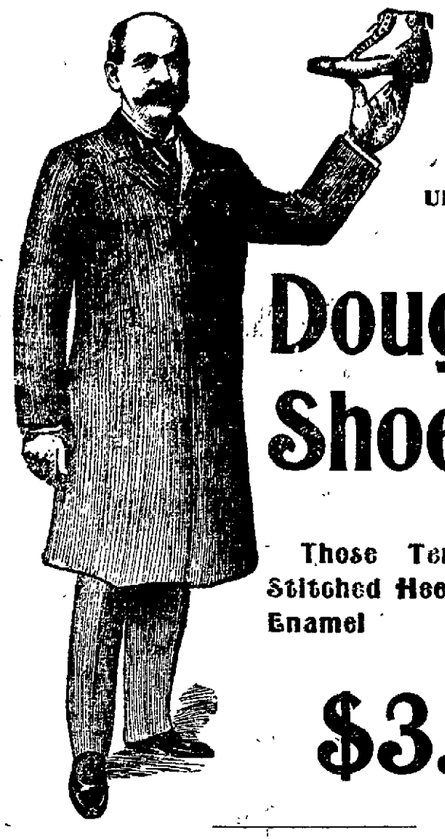

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Humors

They take possession of the body, and are Lords of Misrule.

They are attended by pimples, boils, the itching tetter, salt rheum, and other cutaneous eruptions; by feelings of weakness, languor, general debility and what not.

They cause more suffering than anything else.

Health, Strength, Peace and Pleasure require their expulsion, and this is positively effected, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, by

The comedy has been entirely rewritten this season by the well known author Robert G. Morris. New dialogue, new situations, new scenic and mechanical effects have been added making it one of the funniest up-to date farce comedies before the public and will be presented by a company of comedians and its advent into each city will be heralded by the Company's Superb Brass Band.

ARIZONA, JANUARY 14.

Actresses have heretofore monopolized the privilege of losing jewels, but they will now have to divide the honors with the members of the profession belonging to the opposite sex, for Harrison Armstrong, identified with the character of "Canby," in "Arizona," succeeded in losing valuable jewels while the company was playing in Montreal. Mr. Armstrong is an athlete and also an expert swimmer. In Montreal he patronized the hotel which "features" its Turkish bath appointments. Mr. Armstrong spent most of his time in the pool, and left his jewelry in the care of his favorite water spaniel, "Impecunious." After he had finished his swim, he claims that the dog barked at him in a way that would indicate that something was wrong, and he finally discovered that the diamonds he had left in the custody of the dog were missing. This is as far as Mr. Armstrong got with the story. The records of the Montreal police department do not show that the affair culminated in any serious arrests, but the fact remains that Mr. Harrison Armstrong lost some jewelry. MISS GRACE ELLISTON.

One of New York's stage beauties is Miss Grace Elliston, who is just at present appearing in "The Helmet of Navarre."

AMUSING ARCHIBALD

Letitia was to go to her club, and I was to take care of our son Archibald, aged two years and eight months. She had explained matters to Archibald. It is one of Letitia's most daring theories that if you cannot explain a thing to Archibald it is you who are stupid, not he who is too young.

"It is wonderful of you, Gerald, dear."

"Nonsense, Letitia. He is quite old enough to be a companion to his father."

A vague look settled in Letitia's blue eyes. I reminded her of the cab at the door, and she fled, while I held Archibald up at the window to wave. He did not cry at all. Archibald is a very self controlled child. He has my temperament in that. He stood on a chair in his coarse white linen smock, his small pink face solemnly set, his blue eyes wide and dreaming, like his mother's. I felt a bit nervous. I get the feeling even with Letitia sometimes—that though she is there she is somewhere very far off.

"You draw me a gak an' tell me about 'em," he commanded suddenly, turning upon me eyes that mischief makes three shades darker.

I do not draw much, but I recollected how easy it is to please small children and took out my pencil. What bothered me was not being able to call to mind what a gak was. Natural history is a subject I neglected as a boy; I collected stamps. Letitia would have known, of course. She is, like all the charmingest women, totally uneducated in the school sense of the term. A native ignorance starred with fantasy, perception, observation and intuition makes her at once the cleverest and most incalculable conversationalist. She'd have known all about gaks. Archibald danced very quickly at my elbow, and it flustered me.

"They go screamin' about in the trees," he shouted, waving his arm as though he saw them in the region of the frieze.

H'm! Couldn't be that extinct bird, then, the auk, of course—no. Well, my eye fell on a Japanese fire screen, and I shamelessly and secretly adapted a stork from it.

"That it?" I gave the leaf of my pocketbook to Archibald. His upper lip, the reddest, finest curved lip I ever saw, twisted into wonderful shapes as he squealed with joy.

"What does it say when it wakes?"

"When it wakes?"

"When it wakes?"

"I hear, sonny. I hear, but"—

Archibald has astonishing tact. "You draw me a ship sailin' far away."

Sensible of a reprieve, I outlined rapidly a vessel of heraldic simplicity.

"Want a fwag on it?"

I added a pennant. Simpkins, who got into the Royal Solent Yacht club the year we were at Cowes, always seemed to have a pennant in his pocket, so I know a pennant.

The funniest gurgle arose from Archibald.

"'At's not a 'blue de peter.' Ships sailin' for far away fwy the 'blue de peter.'"

Momentarily baffled by this nautical pedantry, my hands dived into my pockets, and my wandering fingers encountered a threepenny bit. It is a convention in our family not to spend threepenny bits. They are saved up for Archibald. Letitia calls this "the drag on the wheel." As his fat hand closed on the coin he forgot the "blue de peter," but I was shocked to see his pink face crumple and his mouth become square.

"I don't want the Marquish of London to have en. He might shake en out of he's money box!" he wailed piercingly.

Archibald's first experience of a money box was a toy one which leaked Saturday pennies all over the garden.

"If he cries, ring for cook," had been Letitia's last words from the cab. But I prefer to reason with the child. He has a strange appreciation of reason. Here again I trace my own character. Letitia reasons, but in a way no one can follow save by the light of faith.

"Mother says if I let en keep mine for a little while 'e marquish 'll give me some of e's thripley bits," Archibald explained doubtfully.

Now I regard this threepenny bit business as an out and out failure of Letitia's theory that everything can be explained to the child.

She has not made clear the working of the postoffice savings bank, and she has imbued Archibald with a profound mistrust of the Marquis of Londonderry which may cling to him through life.

Cook's appearance with tea diverted Archibald's mind from dwelling on the nature of his securities.

"I must'n' leave my ewusts," he remarked in a voice which showed that he was quoting nurse, and he built them carefully around the rim of his plate. "The little fwushes never do. The little fwushes opens 'eir mouths an' shuts 'eir eyes when Mrs. Fwush feeds en." Archibald punctuated with mouthfuls of strawberry sandwiches and milk. "If she gives en a cappe-pillar, 'ey are pweased, an' if she gives en a ewusty beetle 'ey never put en out."

Letitia's fancy and Archibald's are so similar that it is difficult to say who I am listening to.

But the moral training concealed in the "ewusty beetle" figment suggests Letitia.

"An' when they have sore fwoats she gives en swugs."

Now I know that is Letitia, but it is quite likely to be truth as well.

"Why must we eat bwead an' butter first an' cake after?" asked Archibald, turning upon me eyes which would detect the slightest hedging on my part. That's just the sort of thing I dread being asked. Why the deuce do we, anyhow? Thank heaven, at that moment I heard Letitia's key in the door.

TWO SISTERS

Charged With the Murder of New Born Twin Babies—Both Girls Now Under Arrest.

Vincennes, Ind., Jan. 8.—Mary and Ruth Putnam, unmarried daughters of Ebel Putnam, a prominent farmer living just across the Indiana line in Illinois, were arrested charged with the murder of twin babes born to Mary Putnam Dec. 21. The babies disappeared Christmas day and the authorities searched the premises and found the little bodies buried in a pasteboard box in the orchard. Ruth Putnam is in jail at Lawrenceburg, while her sister Mary is closely guarded at her father's home by officers, being in too delicate condition to be removed to the jail.

Fugitives Captured.

Casper, Wy., Jan. 8.—Levi Bell, a member of the posse in pursuit of the men who murdered Sheriff Ricker last week, brought in Clarence Wood and Frank S. Foote. Bell and Enoch Jones were left at the Woodward ranch by the posse to watch things, and Monday morning the two alleged murderers came to the ranch. They had had nothing to eat and were badly frozen. The town is all excitement. W. E. Tubbs was appointed sheriff and has sworn in a large number of citizens to protect the jail. The crowd attempted to secure the prisoners on the way to the jail but was foiled.

ELKS

ALREADY ARRANGING FOR STATE CONVENTION.

Which Meets Here This Year—Three Well Known Young Men Initiated and Banquet Followed.

The regular meeting of Newark Lodge, No. 391 B. P. O. E. was held in the lodge rooms Tuesday night, and was one of the most enjoyable of the many good meetings held by that lodge in the past.

There was considerable business of importance transacted, chief of which was the provision for the appointment of a committee to procure amusements for the Elks' State Convention which will be held in Newark probably in September.

A class of three of Newark's best known and popular young men were then initiated in to the lodge. They were City Solicitor Phil B. Smythe, Attorney Frank A. Bolton and Mr. George Uffner.

The impressive and interesting initiatory ceremonies were performed in a handsome manner by Exalted Ruler W. D. Fulton, and the other officials of the lodge, assisted by a special work team headed by Col. W. C. Wells and Martin Flanagan.

At the conclusion of the initiation, an elegant banquet was served in the spacious hall, which was under the supervision of Mr. Daniel Alspaugh.

Judge E. M. P. Brister presided in his usual happy and able manner as toastmaster, and introduced the different speakers of the evening in the following order:

George Kimball spoke entertainingly concerning his recent travels in the west.

George L. Warner delighted the audience with two of his characteristic recitations.

W. D. Fulton gave an exhaustive and technical dissertation on "What I Know About Hunting."

Mr. Norman G. Buxton, a member of the lodge, who has recently returned from an extensive tour of Siberia with the Jessup expedition, was present, and was expected to speak, but was called away too early, and all present were greatly disappointed.

The following visiting brethren were then called on and made neat and appropriate talks: W. P. Gill, Cambridge; P. W. Foust, Mansfield; I. G. Stone, Zanesville; E. J. Smith, Detroit; and Samuel Clarke, of Dennison, Texas, the latter varying the program by rendering several fine recitations which completely captivated the audience.

The newly initiated members were then called on in turn, Messrs. Uffner, Smythe and Bolton, who made interesting responses as to the great impressions for good that had been made upon them by the evening's exercises.

The company then sang in unison, "Auld Lang Syne," and adjourned, all having spent a pleasat and profitable evening.

TO DRAIN FLORIDA LANDS.

Everglades to Be Turned Into Sugar Plantations.

One of the greatest projects just started in Florida is the plan to drain 1,000,000 acres in the everglades and turn them into sugar plantations. The Florida East Coast Drainage and Sugar company has been formed for this purpose. Surveys made under government supervision years ago show the feasibility of the plan.

Arrangements were perfected recently whereby M. Fichtenberg and Henry Benedict of Milwaukee will underwrite the enterprise to the extent of $5,000,000. The opening of the section about Jacksonville by the Florida East Coast railroad has made the plan more feasible, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. It is surmised that Henry M. Flagler is interested in this enterprise and that he is really behind it with his immense capital to aid its development.

Maine to Have Spruce Gum Farms.

Spruce gum production will be made a regular business by owners of the forests in Washington county, Me., says a dispatch from Eastport, Me., to the New York Evening Journal. Recently incisions in the bark of spruce trees have been made, and it is found that these incisions produce gum of the best quality. The first large shipment of gum secured in this manner was made [illegible] H. J. Weeks of Wesley, who sent [illegible] to Boston, produced from [illegible] trees.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The House today at once went into committee of the whole to further consider the Nicaragua canal bill. Mr. Grosvenor, of Ohio, took the chair and Mr. Shackleford, Democrat, of Missouri, was the first speaker. Mr. Shackleford said he would vote for the bill if nothing better was offered.

RAILWAY AFFAIRS.

MATTERS OF BOTH GENERAL AND LOCAL INTEREST.

Wreck Caused by Fog—West Virginia Road Sold—The Railway Kings Must Appear.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—J. J. Hill, E. K. Harriman and other railroad kings must appear before the Interstate Commerce Commission in Chicago on January 24 or later and show cause why they are not in contempt of the United States Circuit court. This was an ultimatum issued this morning by Chairman Knapp of the Commission when he called the body to order. The intention of the commission was to begin an investigation of the Northwestern and other "mergers" today but owing to the failure of Hill and others to attend an adjournment was taken to January 24.

DUE TO A FOG.

The following from Wheeling gives additional details of the N. & W. collision reported in yesterday's press dispatches:

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 8.—On the Kenova division of the Norfolk and Western railroad a head-end collision occurred, in which Hugh Smith, an express messenger and baggagemaster of this city and Flagman John Turner of Bluefield, W. Va., were killed. The accident happened near Alnwick, W. Va. Train No. 4, a passenger train eastbound, collided with an extra westbound freight train. The passenger train was on time and the freight was delayed. The freight train sent Flagman Turner ahead to hold the passenger train at Alnwick, but owing to the heavy fog the engineer of the passenger train did not see him, and the flagman, in his efforts to be seen, got on the track in front of the train and was run over and killed. The two trains came into collision just east of Alnwick. Both engines were badly damaged. The express car was crushed and Messenger Smith killed. Engineer Bailey of the passenger train was so seriously hurt that he died later of his injuries. He resided in Bluefield. Conductor Moran of the same train was injured slightly by being cut with broken glass.

ANOTHER ROAD SOLD.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 8.—General Manager Bretz of the West Virginia Central railroad confirmed the report of the sale of that road. It was also stated on reliable authority that the Wabash railroad was the purchaser, and that the sale was made in New York to a stock broker of that city, who represented the Wabash. It is understood that the price was $17,000,000, and that the sale included the mining plants and holdings of several hundred thousand acres.

NORTHERN SECURITIES AFFAIR.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Attorney General Wallace B. Douglas of Minnesota filed in the United States supreme court the bill of complaint in the case of the state of Minnesota against the Northern Securities company. The bill points out the direct interest the state has in the proposed consolidation. The state still owns more than 3,000,000 acres of public land valued at more than $15,000,000 and traversed in part by the lines of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads. If the merger is affected these roads will cease to build spurs into these lands or compete for their business. The bill, among other things, asks that officials of the companies be required to show cause why they should not be enjoined perpetually from effecting a consolidation of these parallel lines.

MR. BAKER'S CONDITION.

Fred Baker, a B. & O. brakeman, several days ago struck his left leg against a box car, bruising the shin bone. Nothing was thought of the injury at the time but a dangerous abscess has formed and he is now unable to work and is confined to his room.

Dr. D. M. Smith is attending him and it is hoped that nothing more serious will develop.

STEEL TRUST

Net Earning in Nine Months Ending December 21, Over Eighty-Four Million Dollars.

New York, Jan. 8.—In the nine months ending Dec. 31, the net earnings of the United States Steel corporation were $81,775,298. The quarterly meeting of the directorate was held here, and besides voting the usual dividend of 1¾ per cent on preferred and 1 per cent on common stock, a general statement of the finances of the corporation was made public. The sinking fund in United States Steel corporation bonds and the bonds of subsidiary companies consumed $2,263,292, and depreciation reserve and contingent funds and improvements $9,695,702. The sum of $11,400,000 was paid in interest on bonds for nine months, and $42,695,807 was paid out in dividends. The balance available for surplus or new construction amounted to $19,414,497.

Schwab on Trusts.

Paris, Jan. 8.—Le Journal prints a long interview with Charles M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel corporation, who defends trusts as a necessary outcome of an advanced state of civilization. Mr. Schwab says that the countries where trusts do not exist are destined to abandon the struggle for commercial supremacy. He says that the trusts have nothing to fear from socialism, and that American workmen are better paid and happier under the trust system. When people earn good wages, he says, their rights do not trouble them.

New Furnaces.

Pittsburg, Jan. 8. — Within a few days contracts are to be awarded by the Union Steel company for the construction of two blast furnaces, a group of open hearth furnaces and an immense amount of steel structural work, which will cost several millions of dollars at Donora, on the Monongahela river, 20 miles from the city. Capital that will be invested is over $14,000,000. Thousands of men are to be given employment. The Mellons and H. C. Frick are heavily interested in the concern.

That Rush.

(Communicated.)

The communicated article that appeared in Monday's Advocate, relating to the class rush, was evidently written by a member of the Senior class, as everything blamable was blamed upon the Juniors, and everything creditable credited to the Seniors. The tale, like the chandeleir he spoke of, was badly twisted. One thing however that he forgot to mention, was that the chandeleir was promptly repaired at the expense of the Junior class.

The Junior boys emphatically deny the accusation of opposing the Senior girls, any statement to the contrary being absolutely without foundation. They disclaim any intention of breaking either the heads or the hearts of the "fair" Seniors. The rally round the chandelier was exclusively feminine, and the presence of horrid man was not in evidence. The girls fought their own battle, unaided or unsupported by any of the sterner sex. It was a case of Greek meet Greek, and dog eat dog.

The reason why the Senior boys so gallantly refused to oppose girls, was that they (the Senior boys) were compelled to give their undivided attention to the Junior boys, and were kept so busy that they had no time to see what was doing among the girls.

While the Juniors do not claim a complete victory, the victory certain is did not perch on the banner of the Seniors, as there was not enough left of it to afford a perching place for even a mosquito. To the victor, belongs the spoils, and as the Juniors have the spoils, the may justly claim the lion's share of the victory. E pluribus unum. And the tale goes with the tide. And the end is not yet.

I WITNESS.

BADLY HURT.

Ed. Nobis who is employed at the Fleek & Neal wholesale house, while engaged at work on Tuesday fell off a box and badly injured his side. He is confined to his home today in consequence of his injury.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The House committee on military affairs today began the consideration of the army appropriation bill. Last year's army appropriation bill carried $115,731,00. This year's bill following the estimates carried only $80,289,000, and seems likely that it will be reduced ten millions more.

For, though some goblins hurried back
To free him, by a fairy sent,
The giant's ogre laughed with glee
To hold this knightly thief in check.
His likeness is quite plain to see,
The wealth he guards a jumbled wreck.

Rheumatic Warped Limbs.

To suffer the most excruciating pains, to lose the use of limbs, and to have the joints swollen and disfigured is the lot of the victim of rheumatism.

Uric acid in the blood is the cause of rheumatism. If the kidneys are active, they remove the uric acid. That is their special work. If, on the other hand, the kidneys are deranged, there is sure to be uric acid in the blood and rheumatic pain through the body.

No amount of liniment will ever cure rheumatism. It sometimes relieves, but cure can only be brought about by setting the kidneys right.

The most effective kidney remedy known to man is Dr. A. W. Chase's kidney-Liver Pills. They cure rheumatism permanently by making the kidneys active in their work of removing the uric acid from the blood.

Mr. William J. Coad, No. 65 Brunson Street, Oswego, N. Y., writes: "I am very glad to praise Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and tell what they have done for me. I suffered for many years with severe constipation, rheumatism and kidney trouble, and could get no relief until I tried Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In them I found immediate relief, and can honestly recommend them to other sufferers."

Brought to Newark.

(Mt. Vernon Banner.)

Infirmary Director James Coe left Saturday morning for Newark, taking with him a young lad named Charles Hughes, who will be placed in the Children's Home in Licking county. Young Hughes is ten years of age and came to Mt. Vernon from Newark some time ago. He is in destitute circumstances and the infirmary directors decided to send him back to Newark. Director Coe took him to that city Saturday morning. This is probably Mr. Coe's last official act as infirmary director as his successor Mr. Lybarger, will be sworn in next Monday.

Walla Walla Tragedy.

San Francisco, Jan. 8.—Nothing has been heard of the missing victims of the Walla Walla disaster, and it is feared that they all went down with the steamer. The statement of Lookout Johnson made to the coroner's jury at Eureka, that he saw the lights on the bark and warned the officers on the bridge of the Walla Walla, is denied by them. Other members of the crew of the Walla Walla corroborate Johnson's assertion that the lights on the French bark were visible. The conflicting statement will be investigated by the United States marine authorities.

INSURED FOR A MILLION.

Heirs of Grain King Peavey Will Receive Huge Sum.

One million dollars will shortly be paid by the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York to the heirs of Frank H. Peavey of Minneapolis, a millionaire grain man, who died recently in Chicago of pneumonia, says the New York Herald. Mr. Peavey was fifty-two years old and was credited with being the largest owner of grain elevators in the world. He had been ill only ten days.

On April 28, 1900, Mr. Peavey was insured in the Mutual Life Insurance company for $1,000,000, taking out a twenty year payment policy. The annual premium was $48,890, and as Mr. Peavey's death occurred just one year, eight months and two days after the policy was issued only two payments, amounting to $96,780, had been made. Through Mr. Peavey's death his estate is therefore increased by $903,220.

Shortly before Mr. Peavey took out the million dollar policy he was examined by a special medical board under the direction of Dr. Grenville M. White, the chief medical director of the company. After a painstaking examination the board reported the applicant in perfect health.

A few weeks ago Mr. Peavey was in New York and visited the home office of the company in Nassau street. One of the officers said that he then appeared to be in the most robust health, being a splendid specimen of physical manhood. In response to a query concerning his health Mr. Peavey replied, "I am enjoying my usual good health and fully anticipate living until the expiration of my million dollar policy in 1920."

Insurance companies rarely assume such large risks upon an individual life. George W. Vanderbilt is known, however, to have a policy for $1,000,000 in the Mutual. In taking such risks the company always reinsures a part of the amount in other companies, thus diminishing its own risk. Foreign companies frequently assume a part of this risk, and by the death of Mr. Peavey several such companies will be called upon to settle their part of the million dollar policy.

In Chicago it was learned that Mr. Peavey, in addition to the million dollar policy, carried $500,000 on his life in various companies, the policies ranging from $6,000 to $20,000. His estate, it is said, is valued at $10,000,000.

BOY AIDS ANTHROPOLOGISTS

Indian Lad Found Link Between Navajoes and Alaskan Tinnehs.

The curiosity of an educated Navajo Indian boy concerning an old tradition of his tribe has led to the discovery that the Navajoes of Arizona and the Tinneh Indians of Alaska are branches of the same original tribe, says a Helena (Mon.) dispatch to the New York Journal. This fact is made known by the Rev. Father George de la Motte, superior general of the Jesuit missions in Alaska.

"This discovery was made," said Father de la Motte, "through the curiosity of a young Navajo Indian who had been told a tradition of the tribe handed down from father to son for many generations that the Navajoes at one time inhabited a cold country.

"This boy read something in a magazine concerning the Tinneh Indians. The word 'Tinneh' in the Navajo language means 'man.' He became so interested that he wrote to a missionary in Alaska, mentioning a number of Navajo words and their meanings. It was found that the same words and same meanings were found in the Tinneh language.

"Other tribal peculiarities were compared, with the result that it has been established beyond reasonable doubt that the Navajoes and Tinnehs are offshoots of the same original stock."

This discovery is of immense value and interest to anthropologists and strongly confirms a long believed theory that the American Indians migrated from the north to their hunting grounds on this continent, displacing the original inhabitants of America, and that, furthermore, they originally came from Asia.

Boers Fought In Their Socks.

Independent accounts of the Boer attacks on Colonel Firman's camp on Dec. 24 add little to the official story of the occurrence except that General De Wet's force of 1,500 men, as at Majuba, removed their boots, climbed the precipice without noise and completely startled the sleeping British camp, says a dispatch from London to the New York Herald. The terrible struggle lasted barely half an hour. Three more British officers have died from wounds received in this engagement, making all told nine officers killed.

WHITE HOUSE FROLIC.

President Steps a Dance to Ragtime Tune.

LED IN A CHRISTMAS CAKEWALK.

Pranced Down the Line to the Strains of "A Hot Time"—Virginia Reel Started the Fun—Senator Lodge Entered Heartily Into the Revels In the East Room.

President Roosevelt took part in the cakewalk and danced the Virginia reel in the White House on Christmas night as a finale to the Christmas festivities, writes the Washington correspondent of the New York World. Senator Lodge and some young people, invited guests, also took part in the festivities.

The frolic took place in the historic east room. Amid much laughter the party formed for the Virginia reel. The orchestra struck up, and the president of the United States led the dance up and down the line, executing many fancy steps.

Mrs. Roosevelt and the other ladies in the party were almost hysterical over the antics of the president, who entered into the dance with all his accustomed spirit. The president chassed, sidestepped and "balanced all," while the little Roosevelt boys gave vent to howls of merriment.

Following the president came Henry Cabot Lodge, United States senator from Massachusetts, usually staid, dignified, stately. On Christmas night he forgot all this and danced with all the vim and abandon of his young son, who was present. The Roosevelt children guyed the senator just as they had their father.

For thirty minutes the reel was danced. Then the orchestra struck up "There'll Be a Hot Time." The guests yelled, and some one started a cakewalk. The president chose a partner and led the cakewalk down the long east room, executing fancy, buck and wing steps, while others in the party clapped "juba."

"Go it, pop!" yelled the Roosevelt children. Mrs. Roosevelt laughed until the tears came to her eyes. After a few minutes of "A Hot Time" the orchestra began playing "Whistling Rufus," a real cakewalk tune, and the entire party joined in the contest. The young son of Senator Lodge soon demonstrated that he was the star cakewalker, and the president allowed him to lead. After the cakewalk came an old fashioned country square dance.

It was the president's own suggestion that after dinner the party have an old fashioned Christmas celebration. The party adjourned to the long corridor, where games were played for half an hour, the children all participating.

When President and Mrs. Roosevelt upon arising prepared to conduct the family procession to the sitting room to examine the Christmas stockings, it was found that the restless youngsters had stolen a march and already knew all about the presents and were joyous because of the multitude of gifts.

Theodore junior received a splendid hunting outfit, including a shotgun, a magazine rifle and a hunting knife. These arms will be tried during his hunting trip, just begun under the guidance of Dr. Rixey.

The morning was devoted to a family reunion, punctuated by visits from cabinet members. At 1:30 the whole family, including Mame, the nurse, drove to the residence of Commander Cowles. Shortly after their arrival a switch was turned, and the big Christmas tree in the large sitting room on the second floor instantly was ablaze with electric lights. The tree was set in mossy grounds surrounded by a lake and with wonderful animals grouped on the sward.

While the merriment was at its height the president withdrew unobserved. Shortly thereafter the children were delighted by the entrance of a rollicking Santa Claus. What seemed real snow and icicles clung to his boots and to his pack. He knew exactly what would please little boys and girls, and just the right presents were forthcoming from the pack.

Baby Quentin discovered the absence of his father and lamented the fact vociferously until calmed by the gift of a baby rough rider uniform, which Mrs. Cowles herself had made and which offset a sailor uniform presented to Baby Sheffield Cowles.

At 6 o'clock both families returned to the White House for dinner. Baby Quentin sat opposite Baby Sheffield. Both were in high chairs, and they were the autocrats of the feast. The grown folks, including President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Commander and Mrs. Cowles and Miss Carew, with Miss Alice and young "Teddy," were so placed about the board as to best assist the children.

President Roosevelt carved the turkey. The feast was concluded with old fashioned pumpkin and mince pies, sent by Mrs. Roosevelt's old neighbors at Oyster Bay. The evening was devoted to games and dances.

Sea Diver's Great Feat.

Captain Louis Sorcho, the champion deep sea diver, beat all records the other day when he remained under water for nine hours. The feat was performed in the Coliseum building, where the pure food show is in progress, says the Chicago Record Herald. Captain Sorcho's exhibition was the main feature of the big show, and from the time he was lowered into the big tank at 2:04 o'clock in the afternoon until 11:04 o'clock the same night, when he was taken out, thousands were permitted to view the unusual sight. The previous record was 8 hours 40 minutes and 30 seconds.

AMERICANIZING ENGLAND.

Influence of American Women on British Social Customs.

But it is not only in the realm of the shopkeeper that Americans have become popular, says Earl Mayo in the January Forum. They have been taken up with equal or even greater enthusiasm by the highest ranks of society. There is no doubt that their popularity has been due in great measure to the influence of those American women who have married into the ranks of the clever, titled or wealthy, who form the most important elements of British high society. The grace, the brightness and the adaptability of these women have made them immensely popular, and the British, having found them fair types of their countrywomen and countrymen, have extended an equally cordial welcome to the latter. At every house party held in England last summer, at every London dinner and on every yachting expedition Americans were much in evidence.

There have been many signs also to show American influence on English social customs. For one thing it may be seen in the decay or one may say more properly perhaps the relaxation of the stiff necked chaperon system. Until quite recently it was unusual to find in England a formal gathering at which fashionable young women were allowed to attend unaccompanied by chaperons. During the last season, however, there were many such affairs organized by fashionable young people and under the direction of a single young matron, as is very generally the custom in this country. There is a very noticeable tendency in England to allow young people much more freedom of social intercourse than formerly. It cannot be said either that the change is at all unpopular with the young people themselves or that it seems likely to have any other effect than to develop in the English girl the self reliance that is so prominent a characteristic of her American cousin and to make young men and women understand each other better than under the older and more formal system.

Another effect of American example is to be found in the growing popularity of hotel and restaurant life abroad. Until the American "invasion" it was almost an unheard of thing for a family to take dinner in a public restaurant when their own house was available for the purpose. And as for entertaining friends in such a place, that was looked upon as altogether too outre to be attempted. Now, however, all this is changed, and it is not unusual for a London host and hostess to call upon the resources of a fashionable hotel or restaurant in giving entertainments beyond the limits of ordinary house accommodation. A significant sign of the trend in this direction is to be found in the rapid multiplication of fine hotels that is going on in London at the present time. These hotels themselves, by the way, are becoming rapidly Americanized. American methods of organization and management, American dishes and American drinks are coming more and more into vogue, and it is easy enough to find half a dozen hotels in London which are in all essential respects exactly like those of New York.

A USE FOR COAL ASHES.

Discovery That Fireproof Mortar Can Be Made Therefrom.

George F. Averill, living at Arverne, N. Y., says that he has discovered a means of using the waste coal ash cinders that will make the hitherto useless material of great commercial value. The use which Mr. Averill has found for these coal ashes is in a new kind of fireproof mortar, 90 per cent of which is made up of coal ashes and the rest double hydraulic cement, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Mr. Averill has had tests made under the supervision of the department of buildings in Manhattan which show that the insulating properties of a block constructed according to Mr. Averill's specifications are very great. In fact, Mr. Averill says that with over 1,700 degrees F. hardly any perceptible heat could be felt by the hand on the other side of the block. Matches which had been laid on the block were not ignited, and some white pine and oak splinters showed no signs of charring. A thermometer on the upper side of the block during the whole time of the test registered only 116 degrees.

Mr. Averill also proposes to make a fireproof concrete from the waste ashes which can be used in ceilings and can be made into blocks for partitions. It has been estimated that the amount of waste of coal ashes in Manhattan and Brooklyn aggregates 6,000,000 cubic yards yearly, the greater portion of which is now dumped into the ocean.

Telephones on Dining Tables.

There is a new quick lunch telephone in Chicago, and the city has the honor through the Chicago Telephone company of being the first in the world to provide diners with telephones while they eat, says the Chicago Record-Herald. The broker, financier or merchant now eats his lunch placidly certain that his place of business can call him up and he talk back to it without leaving his table. Three cafes of the city are already using the system, and it promises to be installed in all popular eating places within a short time. All the dining table now needs is a stenographer and typewriter to make man absolutely happy.

Latest Souvenir Cups.

Quite new, not more than a month old, are the aluminum cups, souvenirs of the Spanish-American war. They have on the outside a large portrait of President McKinley, a smaller single portrait of Captain Hobson and groups of officers Lee, Shafter, Miles, Sampson, Schley and Dewey.

Interstate Commission After Western Packers.

VIOLATIONS OF THE LAW ALLEGED.

Morgan, Hill, Harriman and Other Promoters of the Community of Interests Idea Duly Summoned—Suit Filed Against Proposed Northwestern Merger.

Chicago, Jan. 8. — Prosecutions against all the big packing house concerns in the west for violations of the provision of the interstate commerce law against receiving preferential rates are contemplated by the interstate commerce commission. This fact developed during an investigation begun by the commission into the handling of packing house products and dressed meats. It also became apparent that the commission and the railway managements of the entire country practically entered into an alliance for the purpose of inducing congress to pass legislation permitting the railroads to pool under certain regulations by the interstate commerce commission, and that it is believed such a law can and will be passed. The third development of the day was the announcement that the commission had requested the attendance of all the leading men in the advancement of the community of interests idea, including J. P. Morgan, J. J. Hill and E. H. Harriman, and that if these men failed to respond to the request harsher measures would be taken to compel their coming.

Chinese Rulers Very Meek.

Peking, Jan. 8.—The re-entrance of the Chinese emperor and empress into Peking was the most remarkable episode in the annals of the dynasty, save the flight of the Chinese court when Peking was bombarded by the allies. The spectacular phases of the return of the court exceeded expectations. The scene was a bewildering barbaric exhibition of oriental tinselled splendor. Its chief significance was the complete effacement of the traditional deification of Chinese royalty. Foreigners were given greater facilities of witnessing the gay ceremonial than would have been afforded them at most European courts. The scene at the chief gate, when the emperor and empress entered the temple to offer thanks for their safe journey, was nothing less than revolutionary when viewed in the light of all customs.

BELMONT

Lost in the Election Held for Congressman in New York—Lessler a Winner.

New York, Jan. 8.—Montague Lessler, the Republican candidate in the election held for congressman in the Seventh District, has been elected by 394 votes over Perry Belmont, the Democratic candidate. The total vote was: Lessler, 7,677; Belmont, 7,283.

Stole Small Sums.

Boston, Jan. 8.—The mystery of the disappearance of small sums of money from cash drawers in various departments at the statehouse at night was solved when J. William Henry Johnson, a colored porter, was caught rifling the drawer in the office of the bureau of registration in pharmacy. He was arrested, admitted his guilt in the municipal court and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment. It is said he is a regularly ordained Baptist minister.

Both Killed.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—The bodies of Joseph Kaskey, Sr., 60, and Joseph Kaskey, Jr., 30, were found in the yard of their home at Camden, N. J. Both had been shot and a revolver was found by the side of the elder man. None of the circumstances of the shooting is known. The dead men were Poles, and there had been frequent quarrels between them over property.

Time Extended.

Cleveland, Jan. 8.—Still more signatures were received to the agreement extending the time for the payment of the obligations of the Everett-Moore interests. A committee of outside creditors met with the committee of bankers who have the matter in hand, and all showed their willingness to hold their securities and grant the extension of 18 months.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Will Immediately Begin Remodeling the Interior—Contracts Were Awarded Tuesday Night.

At a meeting of the council of St. Paul's English Lutheran church, held Tuesday night, it was decided to begin remodeling the interior of the church immediately. The contract for the frescoing was let to Mr. N. Pfaendler, of this city, and the contract for seating was let to a Michigan firm.

During the repairs services will be held in the Sunday school room.

IN OLDEN TIMES.

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action; but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently overcome habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system. Buy the genuine, made by the California Fig Syrup Company.

REVIVAL

Meeting in Progress at the Baptist Church Conducted by Evangelist Rev. Mr. Evarts.

Since the Sabbath the services for the afternoon and evening have been held with a view to the awakening of a deeper religious interest in the hearts of Christian people. Conditions of prayer and the cause of unanswered prayer have been the subjects of the Bible readings, while personal responsibility to the unsaved was the practical theme of Tuesday evening's sermon. No one can listen to the earnest words of Mr. Evarts and feel unconcerned for himself or for the unsaved.

The course taken by the evangelist in awakening the church to prayer and personal work, is wise, and appeals to every thoughtful Christian, for every genuine work of grace in a community begins within the church.

There will be no Thursday afternoon service at the church, but all the sisters are urged to attend the Woman's Missionary meeting at the home of Mrs. S. F. VanVoorhis, No. 141 West Main street at 2 p. m. Meeting as usual on Friday at 2:30 p. m. The evening services will begin at 7:15 o'clock. All are welcome.

MISS CROW ENTERTAINS.

Miss Mabel B. Crow delightfully entertained a number of her friends at her beautiful home at Jacksontown on last Friday evening. Shortly after the guests assembled, partners were selected and then all proceeded to the dining room where a sumptuous spread was served.

Music by Misses Anna Whitmer and Vida Shauck and various games added to the evening's pleasure. Among the amusements was the arrangement in the parlor of a number of objects representing the names of various books. The guests were given a limited time to guess as many correct names as possible.

The first prize was awarded to Miss Iva Meredith. At a late hour the guests departed with a general expression that the entire evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all and that Miss Crow, as a hostess, is a decided success. The guests present were: Misses Lizzie Crit, Oda Fulk, Iva Meredith, Rebecca Crit, Wahneta Sayers, Ellie Lawrence and Vida Shauck, of Newark, Emma Meredith of Linnville, Anna Whitmer of Thornville, Messrs. John Rusthammer, Claude Davis, J. G. Sanders, Dr. M. M. Barick, Ollie Fulk, Robert Campbell, Era Falk, John Handley, Verdi Beard, Orval Mechling of Thornville, Joe Fulk of Newark.

KENTUCKY

Candidates for Senator on Democratic Side Number Four—Conference is Arranged.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 8.—The candidates for the Democratic nomination for United States senator from Kentucky have arranged for a conference for the purpose of determining when the first ballot shall be taken. There are four candidates in the race, ex-Governor McCreary, Congressman Wheeler and Smith and Judge Cantrill. McCreary wants the caucus held at the earliest possible moment, but the other three candidates want it held off until the first of next week, and will possibly succeed in postponing it.

TONS OF ORE FELL.

Miners Caught in a Shaft and Securely Entombed.

ALL NOW BELIEVED TO BE DEAD.

From Thirteen to Seventeen Men Cut Off From the Outside World by the Cave-in—Attempts at Rescue Prove Futile—Terrible Mine Disaster in Michigan.

Negaunee, Mich., Jan. 8.—From 13 to 17 men are thought to have lost their lives in an accident at Negaunee mine. The accident was the result of a cave-in at the bottom of the shaft, and had it occurred half an hour sooner about 150 men would have been killed. The names of the dead, so far as known, are: William Williams, John Sullivan, John Pascoe, John Pearce and Jacob Hunlalla. Thus far but two bodies have been taken out, Hunlalla's and an Italian, Dominic Baso, alive.

Hundreds of men are at the mine eager to help in the work of rescue, but it is thought the other bodies can not be found within 24 hours.

The Negaunee mine is one of the most unlucky properties in the Lake Superior district. Much trouble has resulted in sinking and drifting from surplus water and quicksands. It was at this mine that $1,000,000 was recently expended to sink a shaft to the ledge.

Baso's story is as follows: "We were sitting around a pump at the bottom of the shaft when, without any warning, thousands of tons of ore came down. I remembered no more until I heard the sound of picks and shovels in the hands of rescuers and their shouts. I was in total darkness and my feelings can not be described. What seemed ages to me were but minutes. When rescuers found me I was 75 feet from the place where I was sitting, and found myself in a drift. How I got there is a mystery, but it can only be accounted for by the concussion of the wind."

Receiver For Cereal Company.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—George W. Dixon has been appointed receiver of the Silver Flake Cereal company. The company owns two plants, one at Cragin Ills., and another at St. Louis, both of which have been closed. The petition for a receiver was filed by the Nash-Wright company, a creditor for $20,600.

RELIEF

Is Requested as the Financial Condition in the Philippines is Said to be Serious.

Manilla, Jan. 8. — Numerous meetings of merchants and others have been held recently at which resolutions were passed urgently requesting congressional action to meet the financial situation here. Since the ratio was officially changed Jan. 1 for the first quarter of 1902 to be $2.10 Mexican silver to one American gold dollar, business transactions of any sort have become difficult. The majority of the business houses have raised their prices 5 and 10 per cent, and some houses refuse to accept any but American coin, which is difficult to obtain owing to the vast speculative shipments of coin during the past few months. Some banks refuse to recognize the government ratio and are fixing their own ratio at one American gold dollar to two Mexican silver dollars.

Diplomatic Corps Received.

Washington, Jan. 8.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt gave a reception at the White House in honor of the diplomatic corps. It was the first formal evening levee of the season and the first at which President and Mrs. Roosevelt have been host and hostess. A full representation of the diplomatic corps made the affair notably brilliant. The floral decorations in the east room were handsome and elaborate and included roses, carnations, hyacinths and lilies of the valley. In the large red, blue and green parlors the floral display was confined to a few growing plants and cut flowers. President and Mrs. Roosevelt received their guests in the blue room.
